You are standing in the place where...

Highclere Castle near Newbury in Berkshire, UK

The castle has been 'owned by the Carnarvon family since 1679, and the ▲ Earl and Countess Carnaryon currently live there. In 2010, movie director Julian Fellowes, a close friend of the family, was planning a new TV series about an aristocratic family and their servants during the early 20th century. While he was staying at Highclere Castle, he realized that it would be the perfect place to set his historical drama, and the castle was 2_ Downton Abbey, the home of the fictional Crawley family. The series was a huge success, and it has been sold all over the world. Both the interior and exterior scenes were shot in and around the castle itself.

In the second season of the TV series, the castle is used as a hospital during the First World War. These scenes are 3_ on a real-life event. In 1914, Lady Almina Carnaryon allowed soldiers who had been wounded to be taken care of in the castle.

Go there

Highclere Castle and gardens are open to the public during the Easter holidays and during the summer-from July to September. It is also open on many Sundays and holidays from 10:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Visit the Egyptian Gallery, which contains many objects brought back from his travels by Lady Almina's husband, the fifth Earl of Carnarvon, who famously discovered the tomb of the young Pharaoh Tutankhamun. www.highclerecastle.co.uk

Cortlandt Alley

New York City, USA

In Hollywood's version of New York City, the giant Imetropolis is full of secret alleys where crimes take place, and criminals are chased by the police. In fact, there are hardly any alleys in New York today at all. One of the few remaining ones, Cortlandt Alley, has been for almost all the alley scenes in movies and TV series that are set in New York City. Movies with scenes that were shot there include Crocodile Dundee and Men in Black 3, and TV series like Blue Bloods, Boardwalk Empire, NYPD Blue, and Law & Order.

Go there

Thousands of tourists want to be 5 in Cortlandt Alley. It is on the edge of Chinatown, in Manhattan, between Franklin Street and Canal Street. In fact, it is a perfectly safe place to visit. In real life, it is not 6_ by gangsters, but is the home for perfectly respectable businesses such as the New York Table Tennis Federation Training Center.

C Casa Loma

Toronto, Canada

This Gothic Revival style building, with a ⊥ spectacular tower, was ⁷______ by Canadian architect E.J. Lennox. The original owner, Sir Henry Mill Pellatt spent $3.5 million and hired 300 workers to construct the building. After three years, the castle was finally completed in 1914. Unfortunately, in 1933, the city of Toronto seized Casa Loma from Pellatt for nonpayment of taxes. After several years of neglect, the castle was scheduled for demolition, but it was saved by the Kiwanis Club-a service club that helps the homeless, the hungry, and other disadvantaged people. The club still holds meetings there today! During World War II, equipment designed to find underwater enemy boats was made in the castle. Because of its unusual look, the castle has been used as a location in several well-known movies such as X-Men, Chicago, and Scott Pilgrim vs. the World. In addition, author Eric Wilson was by this building to write the novel The Lost Treasure of Casa Loma.

Go there

Visitors are "_______ throughout the year. However, some areas of the castle may be closed to the public due to prebooked functions. The castle is open daily from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. It's closed on December 25th, Christmas Day. Guided garden tours are available from May through October. www.casaloma.org

6B Judging by appearances

1 READING & SPEAKING

- a Answer the questions in pairs.
 - 1 Do you have a profile photo of yourself that you use on social networking sites, or on your ID?
 - 2 Why did you choose it?
 - 3 What do you think the photo says about you?
- b Look at the four profile photos. Why do you think the people have chosen these photos?
- c Read the article and complete it with the headings below. Then look at the four photos again. Which of the 12 categories do you think they belong to?
 - A Photo of you as a child
 - B Vacation photo
 - C Logo of your business or company
 - D Photo with a celebrity
 - E Photo with a partner
 - F Photo with your baby or child
- d Read the article again. Look at the highlighted phrases. With a partner, try to figure out their meaning.
- e Think about the profile photos or ID card photos of your family and friends. Which categories do they fit in? Do you agree with the text? Has the article made you want to change your profile picture? Why (not)?

What does your profile picture say about you?

Whether it's a photo of you on a night out or of you with your newborn baby, the image you choose to represent you on social networking sites says a lot about you.

Profile pictures on Facebook and similar sites are the visual projection to friends and family of who you are and

According to communications consultant Terry Prone, there are 12 categories that cover most types of profile pictures.

1 The professionally taken photo You use social media mainly for business or career purposes.

You want to show what you have achieved in your family life and are generally more interested in a response from women than from men.

You see your other half as the most important thing in your life, and you see yourself as one half of a couple.

4 Having fun with friends Generally young and carefree, you want to project an image of being fun and popular.

You are a bit of an escapist and eager to show a different side of yourself from what you do on a day-to-day basis.

This kind of image says that you don't really want to grow up and face the future. You are nostalgic for your childhood.

7 Caricature

Using a caricature is a way of saying that your image isn't rigid and that you don't take yourself too seriously.

8 Photo related to your name, but not actually you (a shop sign or product label for example)

You want to be identifiable, but you feel your name is more important than what you look like.

9 Photo related to your political beliefs or a team that you support

You think that your beliefs and interests are more important than your personality.

You think that showing yourself with a wellknown person will make you seem more important.

11 Self-portrait taken with webcam / camera phone

Functional. It says, "Look, I don't dress up; take me as I am."

You only use social media in a professional capacity, and you identify more with your work role than with your private life.

CAN YOU UNDERSTAND THIS TEXT?

- a Read the text. Do you know of any similar theatrical superstitions in your country? What are they?
- b Read the text again and choose a, b, or c.
 - 1 Before a performance, actors often...
 - a wish each other good luck
 - b wish each other bad luck
 - c touch each others' legs.
 - 2 Whistling in a theater is considered unlucky because...
 - a it used to cause problems for the scene changers
 - b it was associated with being out of work
 - c it confused the actors
 - 3 It is bad luck to...
 - a rehearse any part of a play without an audience
 - b rehearse a play in front of family members
 - c get to the end of a play when nobody is watching
- c Choose five new words or phrases from the text. Check their meaning and pronunciation and try to learn them.

THEATRICAL

Along with sports players, theater professionals are considered some of the most superstitious people around. These are some of their more common beliefs and practices.

NOT WISHING "GOOD LUCK"

Generally, it is considered bad luck to wish someone "good luck" in a theater. Before a performance, it is traditional for the cast to get together and prevent bad luck by wishing each other bad luck. English actors used to say to each other "I hope you break a leg," and even today actors and musicians often say "break a leg" to each other instead of "good luck" before they go on stage.

WHISTLING

It is considered bad luck for an actor to whistle on or off stage. Original stage crews were often hired from ships that were in port, and whose sailors were temporarily unemployed. These sailors, as they did on ships, often used special whistles to communicate scene changes to each other. If an actor whistled, this could confuse the sailors into changing the set or scenery at the wrong time.

NOT WITHOUT AN AUDIENCE

It is considered bad luck to complete a performance of a play when there is no audience. For this reason actors never say the last line of a play during rehearsals, or some production companies allow a limited number of people (usually friends, family, and reviewers) to attend the dress rehearsals.

3 LISTENING

areth Malone first made his name on TV as a choirmaster in The Choir, a series in which CRETH MALONA he brought together all kinds of different people who had never sung before and turned them into accomplished singers.

Last April, Gareth took on what was maybe an even bigger challenge. He became an elementary school teacher for a quarter. His mission was to teach a group of 11-year-SCHOOL FOR BO old boys from a mixed elementary school. Many of the boys weren't doing very well at school and, like many other boys, they were a long way behind the girls in reading and writing. The result is Gareth Malone's Extraordinary School for Boys - a three-part TV series...

- a Look at the photos above. What can you see? Now read about Gareth Malone's Extraordinary School for Boys. In your country, are boys usually behind girls in reading and writing?
- b (48)) Listen to Part 1 of a radio program about the experiment and answer the questions.
 - 1 How long did Gareth have to teach the boys?
 - 2 What was his aim?
 - 3 What three things did he believe were important?
- c (49)) Listen to Part 2. Complete the chart.

Gareth made some general changes, for example:	2
To improve their language	1 Acompetition skills, he	2 A"World Cup"
organized:	3 A, that the boys (and girls) had to both write and perform

- d Listen again. How successful were the three activities?
- e (4)10)) Now listen to Part 3 to find out what the result of the experiment was. Did the boys' reading improve?
- f What do you think of Gareth's ideas? Do you think they are appropriate for girls? Are any of them used in your country?

SPEAKING

- a In groups of three, each choose one (different) topic from the list below. Decide if you agree or disagree and write down at least three reasons.
 - Boys and girls both learn better in single-sex schools.
 - Schools should let children wear whatever they want at school.
 - Cooking and housework should be taught at school.
 - Schools don't teach children the important things they need to know to be an adult.
 - Physical education should be optional.
 - School summer vacations should be shorter.
 - Children spend too much time at school on math and IT and not enough on things like music, art, and drama.
 - Private schools are usually better than public schools.

Debating a topic: organizing your ideas

- The topic I've chosen is...
- I | completely agree that... partly agree completely disagree
- First of all, (I think that...)
- My second point is that...
- · Another important point is that...
- Finally,...
- b Explain to the rest of your group what you think about your topic. The others in the group should listen. At the end, they can vote for whether they agree or disagree with you and say why.

- a In pairs, answer the questions.
 - 1 When was the last time you took an exam? Did you pass or fail?
 - 2 What's the next exam you are going to take? How do you feel about it?
 - 3 How do you usually feel before you take an exam?
 - 4 What do you usually do the night before an exam?
 - 5 Have you ever failed an important exam you thought you had passed (or vice versa)?
- b (4)11, 12)) Listen to Olivia and Woo-sung, who are waiting for their exam scores, and answer the questions.
 - 1 Do they think they did well on the tests?
 - 2 When and how will they get the test results?
 - 3 How will they celebrate if they get good scores?
 - 4 What do they want to do if they get good scores?
 - 5 What will they do if they fail, or if they don't get the scores that they need?

O Exams

Exam scores can be given as numbers (usually out of 10 or 100) or as letters (A, B, C, etc.). College grades are usually given in numbers (out of 100). High school grades are usually given in letter (A+, A, A-, etc.)

- c (413)) Listen and complete the sentences.
 - 1 They probably won't admit me unless _
 - 2 As soon as ______ I'll look up my scores.
 - 3 I don't want to plan any celebrations until_____

- ➤ Communication Three in a row p.106.

our 12-year-old daughter is delighted. She got an A-minus in math, second place in a history competition, and top scores on her piano exam. Do you a) say Good job!, give her a hug, and tell her she doesn't need to practice the piano today, and can go to a friend's house, or b) 1 ask why she didn't get an A in math, why she didn't get first place on the history exam, and tell her she'll be punished if she doesn't practice the piano? If you chose a), you are definitely not Amy Chua.

A lot of people wonder why so many Chinese children are math geniuses and musical prodigies. Amy Chua explains why in her book Battle Hymn of the Tiger Mother. It is a book that caused great controversy among parents when it was first published. 2______, Chua married a man who she met at Harvard University, and when their two daughters were born she was determined that they would be as successful as she was.

Her system had strict rules. Her two daughters were expected to be number one in every subject (except gym and drama) and ______. Playing with friends and TV was forbidden. Music was required.

The system seemed at first to be working. From a very early age her daughters Sophia and Lulu were outstanding students and musical prodigies.

- b Read the article again and put the phrases A–H in the correct places.
 - A "They are a mystery to me," she says
 - B Later Sophia was even allowed to go to a rap concert
 - C ask why she didn't get an A in math
 - D Chua spent much of her daughters' childhood shouting at them and criticizing every mistake they made
 - E Born in the Unites States to Chinese immigrant parents
 - F In fact, she is glad her mother made her learn
 - G to be at least two years ahead of their classmates in math
 - H "There's no musical talent in my family," she says, "it's just hard work"
- c In pairs, look at the highlighted words and phrases and figure out their meaning from the context.
- d Read three responses that were posted after the article was published. Do you agree with any of them?

Wow, what a different way of looking at how to learn! Amy Chua certainly shows that strict discipline works. But personally I think that being positive and encouraging children is better than being so strict.

I disagree with the idea that children on their own never want to work. My son was motivated by himself to succeed in music. If having strict and pushy parents is what it takes to be a child prodigy, then I feel sorry for the child. Yes, they might be very successful, but at what cost? What is the rest of their life going to be like?

I agree that no matter what we do in life, hard work is required to be successful. That's a great lesson to learn. BUT, it should be accompanied by love and respect for the child.

- e Talk to a partner.
 - 1 What do you think of Amy Chua's system?
 - 2 Were (are) your parents strict about your education?
 - 3 Did they (do they)...?
 - help you with your homework
 - · make you study a certain number of hours every day
 - · punish you if you didn't (don't) pass exams
 - · let you go out with friends during the week
 - · let you choose your extra activities
 - make you do extra activities that you didn't (don't) really want to do

After make and let we use the base form of a verb. My parents made me work very hard. They didn't let me go out during the week.

Vivienne @Montreal, Canada If I had the money, I would move out immediately. All I want is somewhere that's my own, where I can do what I want, where I can have my own furniture and pictures. where no one can tell me what to do. If it were my place, I'd be happy to do the cleaning and things like that. I would take care of it. But right now it's just a dream, because I can't find a job.

Mauro @Recife, Brazil I'm perfectly happy living at home. If I lived on my own, I'd have to pay rent, do the housework, and the cooking. Here my mother does my laundry, she cleans my room, and of course she cooks, and her food is wonderful. I have a nice room. I have my computer where I can watch TV... Why would I want to leave? Even if I could afford it, I wouldn't move out. Not until I get married...

Andrea @Melbourne, Australia It isn't that my parents aren't good to me - they are. If they weren't, I wouldn't live with them. But I just don't feel independent. I'm 29, but I sometimes worry that if I come back late after a night out, I'll find them still awake waiting up for me. It's never happened, but it still makes me want to move out.

Carlos @San Antonio, Texas I'd love to move out. I get along well with my parents, but I think I'd get along with them even better if I didn't live at home. My mother drives me crazy – it isn't her fault, but she does. And I'd really like to have a dog, but my mother is allergic to them.

f Have you ever visited the house where a famous person was born or lived? Where was it? What do you remember most about it?

Tohaikovsky's NOUSE

In 1885 Tchaikovsky wrote to a friend,

"These days I dream of settling in a village not far from Moscow where I can feel at home."

Pirst he rented a small house in the village of Maidanovo. P But Maidanovo was too full of tourists in the summer, and Tchaikovsky had too many visitors, when what he wanted was peace and quiet. Eventually he found the perfect house, in the small town of Klin. It was 52 miles northwest of Moscow, and he lived there until his death on November 6, 1893. It is the place where he wrote his last major work, Symphony No. 6, or the Pathétique as it's sometimes called.

It's a gray wooden house with a green roof. Tchaikovsky's servant Alexei lived on the first floor, and the kitchen and dining room were on the second floor. Tchaikovsky himself lived on the third floor. The living room and study, where his piano is located, is the largest room in the house, and there is a fireplace and a bookcase with his music books. His writing desk, where he wrote letters every morning after breakfast, is at the end of the room. But the place where he composed music was in his bedroom, on a plain, unpainted table overlooking the yard.

In his final years, Tchaikovsky's great love was his yard. It was not a neat English-style garden, but more like a forest. He adored flowers, particularly lilies of the valley, and after his death, his brother Modest, who had decided to turn the house into a museum, planted thousands of lilies of the valley around the yard.

In 1917, after the Bolshevik revolution, an anarchist named Doroshenko lived there with his family. People say that he fired shots at the portrait of Pope Innocent hanging in one of the bedrooms. He was finally arrested in April, and the house became the property of the state.

Since 1958, the winners of the annual International Tchaikovsky Competition have all been invited to come to Klin to play his piano, and there is a tradition that each musician plants a tree in his yard in the hope that, like his music, it will remain beautiful forever.

The King of Complainers live Zietman loves complaining - but not shouting in hotel lobbies, or angrily telling a salesperson to call the manager, or making a waitress cry. He loves complaining properly and in writing. Over the last 20 years, he has written over 5,000 letters of complaint. His successes include refunded vacations, countless free meals, and complimentary theater tickets.

So how has he achieved this? "Screaming and shouting is a complete waste of time and is usually directed at a person who is not in a position to do anything," he says. "I like to write a polite letter to the company. People won't want to help you if you are aggressive. They respond much better to good manners."

It all started many years ago, on a boring train trip home to West London. The train passed by a cookie factory, and the smell of the cookies made Clive feel hungry. He wrote a letter to the managing director to complain, in a humorous way, about the fumes coming through the train window. The result? Some free packages of cookies. But since then there have been more serious victories as well. On one occasion he managed to get a Volkswagen Golf GTI within 24 hours for a friend who had been complaining for almost a year (without any success) about his faulty vehicle. On another occasion he got a travel agent to refund the cost of a vacation after Clive's wife Bettina broke her leg when she slipped in a puddle of water in their vacation apartment in Spain.

These days, there is almost nothing he won't complain about. After Clive was served moldy strawberries on a British Airways flight, he used a courier service to send the fruit to the airline's chief executive. To compensate, BA invited his daughters, Nina and Zoë, to Heathrow to personally inspect the airline's catering facilities. "I just can't bear bad service," says Clive. "We have a right to good service, and should expect it and demand it. In fact, what irritates me more than anything is that, unlike Americans, we British are hopeless at complaining."

So how do Bettina, his wife, and daughters Nina, 22, Zoë, 18, and 12-yearold son Joe cope with living with one of the world's biggest complainer? Surely he must be a nightmare to live with? Has he ever asked Bettina to explain why a meal she made is badly cooked? "Oh, no, of course not," says Clive. It seems there are some things even he knows you should never complain about!

Adapted from the Daily Mail website

How to complain successfully: Clive's top tips

Never shout and swear - it achieves nothing. Don't spoil your meal or your vacation by getting into an argument with a waiter or customer service call center operator. Make a mental note of the circumstances and write a letter later.

Don't send emails, or standard, printedout complaints forms. Companies may not read these, but they probably will read a letter. And unless you are particularly fond of Vivaldi, don't waste your time calling a customer complaint line! Your letter should be short and to the point, and should fit on one side of an 8 1/2" by 11" sheet of paper. And type it. Reading other people's handwriting is hard work.

Write to the company's marketing director or finance director because they're probably the least busy. Find his or her name on the Internet or by calling. Writing Dear Sir / Madam is lazy. Taking the time to find a person's name and title shows initiative.

If your complaint is serious enough, make it clear you will not hesitate to change to another bank / cell phone company. Smart companies know that changing an angry customer into a satisfied one will make the customer more loyal.

Don't say exactly what you expect to receive as compensation. Leave it to the company.

6

Use phrases like "I can only imagine this is an unusual departure from your usual high standards," and "I would love to shop with you again if you can demonstrate to me that you are still as good as I know you used to be."

 - 3 How does the show work?
 - 4 Is there a similar TV show in your country? How does it work?
- b Look at the photos and read about three products that were presented on the show, a device for a guitar (A), baby bibs (B), and shrimp burgers (C). Which product...?
 - 1 has been very successful although the Sharks didn't invest in it
 - 2 was presented by a musician
 - 3 was presented by a female
 - 4 has a celebrity representing the product
 - 5 is practical for moms and kids
 - 6 is now sold in many US states

Daymond John and Barbara Corcoran have been Sharks on the show since it started. Mark Cuban appeared on the show since the beginning, but became a regular Shark in 2012.

hark Tank is a US TV show, with similar versions in many different countries. On the US show, contestants have about ten minutes to present their business ideas to five very successful businesspeople. These people are nicknamed the "Sharks," and the intimidating room where they meet the contestants is the "Tank" (the sharks' home). The Sharks, who are often multimillionaires, are prepared to invest money in any business that they believe might be a success. In return, they take a share of the profits. The contestants are usually entrepreneurs, product designers, or people with a new idea for a service. After the contestants have made their presentations, the Sharks ask them questions about the product and its possible market, and then say if they are prepared to invest or not. If they are not convinced by the presentation, they say the dreaded words "I'm out."

o far, the Sharks have agreed to invest over $6.2 million in products, companies, and ideas presented on Shark Tank. They were very happy with their investment in Travis Perry, a guitar player from Alabama who had the idea for Chord Buddy – a device that helps people learn to play the guitar. He came into the Tank with some guitars that had the device attached to them. Shark, Robert Herjavec immediately sensed an opportunity in the charismatic Travis and agreed to invest $125,000 in his product. A year later, Chord Buddy has made over $1.5 million in sales and has John Rich – a famous country singer – representing the product. Travis is now running an impressive and profitable company.

Susie Taylor wanted the Sharks to invest in her high-tech baby bib company. The bibs are made from high-quality materials that don't stain. Nobody was enthusiastic, and the Sharks rejected her idea. But Susie hasn't given up. Since appearing on the TV show, orders for Susie's bibs increased and she has been contacted by other investors. And that is what makes a real entrepreneur—he or she never gives up. If the Sharks invest in him or her, there is a chance he or she will be successful. But if they leave the Tank empty-handed, the determination to make it on their own is as great as ever.

And of course, the Sharks don't always get it right. Cook Shawn Davis's product, gourmet shrimp burgers, was rejected. One Shark said, "I'll buy the product, but I don't really know the food business well enough to make the product successful." Another Shark said, "I just don't like shrimp at all, so based on that,

I'm out." A third shark said getting shrimp and keeping it cold makes the product too expensive for the public to buy. Today, Davis's company is worth $6 million, and his shrimp burgers are sold in supermarkets across the US!

The importance of doing what you love

When I was growing up, all I wanted to be was an artist. When I got to high school and could choose what classes to take, I took every art class that was available. Painting, drawing, photography, you name it – I took the class.

Then I took a chemistry class. I LOVED it. It was fun! And I was good at it. I started thinking: wouldn't I make more money if I went into the sciences instead of being a starving artist?

So I threw away the art school applications and went to study chemistry. College was fun, and when I graduated with my chemistry degree, I went to graduate school in Washington, D.C. to do a PhD program in chemistry! It was OK to start with, but after the first year, I was completely depressed. I hated the program. It was dry and boring. But I didn't know what to do about it.

So I quit. I spent the next month feeling bad about my failure, unsure what to do next. Finally, I went to an employment agency to get a job. Something – anything – that would pay money.

I got a temporary job filling envelopes at an NGO. One day they needed some graphic design and I volunteered. This was the major turning point in my career. Over the next few months, they gave me more and more design work. What began as a temporary job turned into a permanent job. I was finally doing something I loved, and I was making money doing it.

It's been difficult at times, but I really love my job. Believe me, it is FAR more important that you are happy and get to do what you are passionate about every day and get paid less for it, than to dread getting up in the morning because you dislike what you do.

The ticket inspector

I was living in a student flat in North London, when the police knocked on my door one night. I thought it was because I hadn't paid the rent for a few months, so I didn't open the door. But then I wondered if it was something to do with my mother, who I knew wasn't very well. There was no phone in the flat and this was before the days of mobile phones, so I ran down to the nearest phone box and phoned my dad in Leeds, in the north of England. He told me that my mum was very ill in hospital and that I should go home as soon as I could.

When I got to the station I found that I'd missed the last train to Leeds. There was a train to Peterborough, from where some local trains went to Leeds, but I would miss the connection by about 20 minutes. I decided to get the Peterborough train - I was so desperate to get home that I thought maybe I could hitchhike from Peterborough.

"Tickets, please." I looked up and saw the ticket inspector. He could see from my eyes that I'd been crying. "Are you OK?" he asked. "Of course I'm OK," I said. "You look awful," he continued. "Is there anything I can do?" "You could go away," I said rudely.

But he didn't. He sat down and said, "If there's a problem, I'm here to help." The only thing I could think of was to tell him my story. When I finished I said, "So now you know. I'm a bit upset and I don't feel like talking anymore. OK?" "OK," he said, finally getting up. "I'm sorry to hear that, son. I hope you make it home."

I continued to look out of the window at the dark countryside. Ten minutes later, the ticket inspector came back.

e After this story was on the news, several people wrote in with their stories about being helped by strangers. A read The students, B read The angel.

The students

I was living in Korea at the time, teaching English. I had to leave the country and return again because of problems with my visa, so I booked a ferry to Fukuoka in Japan. I intended to change some South Korean money into Japanese ven when I got there, but when I arrived, I discovered it was a holiday in Japan and all the banks were closed. I didn't have a credit card, so I walked from the ferry terminal toward the town wondering what I was going to do without any Japanese money. I was feeling lonely and depressed when suddenly I heard a young couple speaking French. I asked them if they spoke any English, and they told me (in good English) that they were Belgian students. When I explained my problem, they immediately offered to take me around the city and look for somewhere where I could change money. They paid for my bus ticket, and they took me to several places, and in the end, we found a hotel where I was able to change my cash. They then invited me to join them and their friends for the evening. I had a fantastic night and have never forgotten how they changed all their plans just to help a stranger. - Karina

The angel

It was a cold Sunday evening in Manchester. I was a college student, and my girlfriend and I had been invited to dinner with our tutor at his house about 18 miles away. We decided to go on my motorcycle, but we hadn't realized how cold it was, so we hadn't dressed warmly enough, and after ten minutes on the bike we were absolutely freezing. When we were about half way there, the bike started to make a funny noise and then stopped. We had run out of gas. We stood at the side of the road, shivering with cold, and not sure what to do.

Suddenly a passing car stopped. The driver got out, opened the trunk of his car, and took out a can of gas. He walked up to my bike. opened the gas tank, and poured the gas in. He then closed the tank and got back into his car, without saying a single word, and drove away. We couldn't believe our luck. We sometimes wonder if the man who rescued us was an angel... - Andy

- b Read the article A question of luck? about a book by Malcolm Gladwell, and answer the questions.
 - 1 What three factors does he think being successful really depends on?
 - 2 Why is it an advantage for sports players to be born in the first months of the year in some countries?
 - 3 What is the 10,000 hours theory?
- c (56)) Now listen to two other examples Gladwell mentions, The Beatles and Bill Gates. What two main reasons does he give for their extraordinary success?

d Listen again and answer the questions.

THE BEATLES

- 1 Where did they play and between which years?
- 2 Where did the club owner usually get bands from?
- 3 How much did they have to play?
- 4 How many times had they performed live by 1964?

BILL GATES

- 5 When did his school start a computer club?
- 6 Why was this unusual?
- 7 What did he and his friends do on weekends?
- 8 How many hours did he spend at the computer club every week?
- e What do you think? Answer these questions with a partner.
 - 1 Do you agree that luck and practice are just as important as talent? Is luck more important than practice or the other way around?
 - 2 Think of something you are moderately good at or very good at. Were you lucky to be able to have the opportunity to start doing it? How many hours do you think you have spent practicing it? Do you think you have spent more hours doing it than other people you know?

question of

hat is the question we always ask about successful people? We want to know what they're like - what kind of personalities they have, or how intelligent they are, or what kind of lifestyles they have, or what special talents they might have been born with. And we assume that it is those personal qualities that explain how that individual gets to the top of his or her profession.

But according to Malcolm Gladwell, in his book Outliers, we are asking the wrong questions. He thinks that while talent is obviously a factor, there are two other more important ones that make a person successful. The first of these factors is luck.

He begins with the example of sports players. In recent research done on various groups of elite ice hockey players from Canada and the Czech Republic, one fascinating fact came to light. In both countries, it was discovered that 40% of the players on the top teams were born between January and March, 30% between April and June, 20% between July and September, and only 10% between October and December. The explanation was simple. The school year in these countries runs from January to December. A boy who is ten on January 2nd will be in the same class as one whose 10th birthday is on December 30th. The chances are the first boy will be bigger, stronger, and more coordinated. He is much more likely than the other boy to be chosen to play on junior teams. He will then get better coaching than the others, and will play many more games, so will also get more practice. In the beginning, his advantage isn't so much that he is more talented, simply that he is older. He was lucky enough to be born in the first months of the year. But by the age of 13 or 14, with the extra coaching and practice, he really will be better than the others, and far more likely to be successful.

The extra practice is vital, because the second factor that Gladwell believes is of great importance in determining whether somebody is going to be successful or not is what he calls the "10,000 hours theory." This theory, based on studies in many different fields, says that in order to get to the very top you need to put in 10,000 hours of practice, whether it is playing an instrument or a sport, or programming a computer.

Information overload

If you type the words "information overload" into Google, you will immediately get an information overload – more than 7 million hits in 0.05 seconds. Some of this information is interesting – for example, you learn that the phrase "information overload" was first used in 1970, before the Internet was invented. But much of the information is not relevant or useful: obscure companies and even more obscure bloggers.

Information overload is one of the biggest irritations in modern life. There are news and sports websites to watch, emails that need to be answered, people who want to chat with you online, and back in the real world, friends, family, and colleagues who also have things to tell you. At work, information overload is also causing problems. A recent survey has shown that many company managers believe that it has made their jobs less satisfying and has even affected their personal relationships outside work. Some of them also think that it is bad for their health.

Clearly there is a problem. It is not only the increase in the quantity of information, it is also the fact that it is everywhere, not just in the home and in the workplace. Many people today do not go anywhere without their smartphones. There is no escape from the Internet.

Scientists have highlighted three big worries. First, information overload can make people feel anxious: There is too much to do and not enough time to do it. People end up multitasking, which can make them even more stressed. Second, information overload can make people less creative. Research shows that people are more likely to be creative if they are allowed to focus on one thing for some time, without interruptions. Third, information overload can make people less productive. People who multitask take much longer and make many more mistakes than people who do the same tasks one after another.

What can be done about information overload? One solution is technological: There is now a computer program or app you can install called Freedom that disconnects you from the web at preset times. The second solution involves willpower. Turn off your cell phone and the Internet from time to time. The manager of an IT company puts "thinking time" into his schedule when all his electronic devices are turned off so that he isn't disturbed. This might sound like common sense. But nowadays, although we have more information than ever before, we do not always have enough common sense.

f Read the information about indirect questions. Then make questions 1–5 more indirect by using the beginnings given.

Indirect questions We often put Can / Could you tell me...?, Do you know...?, I'd like to know..., I wonder... before a question to make it less direct. When we do this, the direct question changes to an affirmative sentence, i.e., the word order is subject + verb, and we don't use do / did in the present and the past. Compare: Why is Paul in your apartment? Could you tell me why Paul is still in your apartment? Has he got one now?

Do you know if (or whether) he's got one now?

What do you really want?
I'd like to know what you really want.

Do you really want to be here? I wonder if (or whether) you really want to be here.

5 Who did Natalie Wood have an argument with the night she died?

6 How many years later did the police reopen the investigation into her death?

WAS SHE THE 1/victim OF A CRIME OR DID SHE DIE AS A RESULT OF AN UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT?

On the cold and rainy night of November 29, 1981, the beautiful and talented actress Natalie Wood mysteriously fell off her boat, The Splendour, and died. She was found the next morning, nearly a mile away, floating in the water with bruises and scratches on her body.

More than thirty years later, officials still haven't been able the mystery of Natalie Wood's death. On the boat with Natalie that night were her husband-actor Robert Wagner, a friend-actor Christopher Walken, the captain—Dennis Davern, and a few others. Police know that Wagner and Walken had an argument early in the evening, but they made up and Walken went to bed. Police also know that Wood and Wagner had an argument. Wood then went to bed and when Wagner went to look in on her later, she wasn't in her room. No one heard or saw Natalie fall off the boat. Therefore there were no 3_ say whether her death was a 4___ or an accident. In addition, 5_____ who were working on the case at the time were not able to find any solid to 7 _____ whether Natalie Wood was pushed to her death from the boat. Therefore her death was officially ruled an accident—meaning there was for police to arrest and put in jail.

In 2012, a TV news show investigating Natalie Wood's death brought new information to Los Angeles County officials. The TV news show claimed the bruises and scratches on her body were proof that she was indeed the victim of a murder. Officials have reopened the case and are currently conducting interviews; however none of the people who were on the boat that night have been officially named as is a short story written by novelist Graham Greene. The story takes place in England around the time it was written, in the late 1930s, when the death penalty for murder still existed. It was abolished in 1965.

The Case for the Defense

BY GRAHAM GREENE

PART 1

It was the strangest murder trial I have ever attended. They named it the Peckham murder in the headlines, although Northwood Street, where Mrs. Parker was found murdered, was not actually in Peckham.

The prisoner was a well-built man with bloodshot eyes. An ugly man, one you wouldn't forget in a hurry – and that was an important point. The prosecution intended to call four witnesses who hadn't forgotten him and who had seen him hurrying away from the little red house in Northwood Street.

At two o'clock in the morning Mrs. Salmon, who lived at 15 Northwood Street, had been unable to sleep. She heard a door shut and so she went to the window and saw Adams (the accused) on the steps of the victim's house. He had just come out and he was wearing gloves. Before he moved away, he had looked up – at her window.

Henry MacDougall, who had been driving home late, nearly ran over Adams at the corner of Northwood Street because he was walking in the middle of the road, looking dazed. And old Mr. Wheeler, who lived next door to Mrs. Parker, at number 12, and was woken up by a noise and got up and looked out of the window, just as Mrs. Salmon had done, saw Adams's back and, as he turned, those bloodshot eyes. In Laurel Avenue he had been seen by yet another witness.

SONY

PART 2

"I understand," the lawyer for the prosecution said, "that the defense intends to plead 'mistaken identity.' Adams's wife will tell you that he was with her at two in the morning on February 14. However, after you have heard the witnesses for the prosecution and examined carefully the features of the prisoner, I don't think you will be prepared to admit the possibility of a mistake."

Mrs. Salmon was called again. She was the ideal witness, with her slight Scottish accent and her expression of honesty and kindness. There was no malice in her, and no sense of importance. She told them what she had seen and how she had rung the police station.

"And do you see the man here in court?"

She looked straight at the big man in the dock, who stared hard at her with his bloodshot eyes, without emotion.

"Yes," she said, "there he is."

"You are quite certain?"

She said simply, "I couldn't be mistaken, sir."

"Thank you, Mrs. Salmon."

The lawyer for the defense began to cross-examine Mrs. Salmon.

"Now, Mrs. Salmon, you must remember that a man's life may depend on your evidence."

"I do remember it, sir."

"Is your eyesight good?"

"I have never had to wear spectacles, sir."

"You're fifty-five years old, aren't you?"

"Fifty-six, sir."

"And the man you saw was on the other side of the road, is that right?"

"Yes, sir, he was."

"And it was two o'clock in the morning. You must have remarkable eyes, Mrs. Salmon?"

"No, sir. There was moonlight, and when the man looked up, he had the lamplight on his face."

"And you have no doubt whatever that the man you saw is the prisoner?"

"None whatever, sir. It isn't a face you can easily forget."

- c (5 42)) Now read and listen to Part 2.

 Then answer the questions with a partner.
 - 1 Adams's defense was "mistaken identity." What does this mean?
 - 2 Where did Adams say that he was?
 - 3 What did the prosecution lawyer ask Mrs. Salmon?
 - 4 What three reasons did she give to explain how she had seen Adams's face so clearly?
- d (5 43)) Read the glossary for Part 3 of the story, and check how the words are pronounced. Then listen to Part 3 and answer the questions with a partner.

The ICON and the GYPSY

I was a young Gypsy boy trying to grow up in the 1960s in a country that was very hostile to our lifestyle, and with no access to education, and no chance to listen to music, or to attend festivals.

By chance, my family was on the Isle of Wight during the famous 1969 music festival. I was knocking on doors, trying to sell our

I must have been there for most of the morning, and he got me to sing a couple of the Gypsy songs I knew. Before I left he played me a song on his guitar and gave me a record, which he said was his, and had the song on. But I didn't have a record player, and I soon lost the record.

I had no idea who he was, and I forgot about him until I was in my early twenties. Unfortunately I had gotten into some trouble and was in Brixton Prison for burglary. My sentence was for two years. We had a vicar who used to visit twice a week, and because we were bored, we would sometimes attend his sessions. At one of the sessions he played some music on an old record player, and as soon as I heard it, I recognized the singer. He told me it was a man named Bob Dylan and said that if I liked it, he would bring more of his records to the next meeting. The following week I spent hours transfixed as I listened to the records. One song stood out – North Country Blues – it was the song he had sung to me in the kitchen on the Isle of Wight all those years ago. When the song had finished, I cried – all the troubles and hardship I had lived with just poured out of me.

Those sessions with the vicar became my education. With his guidance and Dylan's poetry, a world opened up to me. He taught me to read and write, and by the time my prison sentence came to an end, I had started a journey that transformed my life. With the vicar's support I went to college and became a carpenter – I didn't look back.

8A I WANT TO SPEAK TO THE MANAGER

Student A

Look at the situations and role-play the conversations. Spend a few minutes preparing what you are going to say.

You're a customer. You bought something in a clothing store on sale yesterday (decide what) and there's a problem (decide what). Go back to the store. B is the salesperson. You'd like to exchange it for another identical one. If you can't, you'd like a refund.

You start. Excuse me. I bought...

2 You're the manager of a restaurant. Your regular chef is off this week, and you have a temporary chef who is not very good. One of the waiters has had a problem with a customer, who would like to speak to you. When customers complain, you usually offer them a free drink or a coffee. If it's absolutely necessary, you might give a 10% discount on their bill, but you would prefer not to. B is the customer.

B will start.

8B THE RIGHT JOB FOR YOU Students A+B

In which group(s) do you have the most check marks? Read the appropriate paragraph to find out which jobs would suit you. Would you like to do any of them?

If you have the most check marks in 1-4, the best job for you would be in the "caring professions." If you are good at science, you could consider a career in medicine, for example becoming a doctor or nurse. Alternatively, teaching or social work are areas that would suit your personality.

If you have the most check marks in 5-8, you should consider a job involving numbers, for example becoming an accountant or working in the stock market. The world of business would also probably appeal to you, especially sales or marketing.

If you have the most check marks in 9-12, you need a creative job. Depending on your specific talents you might enjoy a job in the world of music, art, or literature. Areas that would suit you include publishing, journalism, graphic design, fashion, or the music industry.

If you have the most check marks in 13-16, you have an analytical mind. You would be suitable for a job in computer science or engineering. You also have good spatial sense which would make architecture and related jobs another possibility.

5 A MOVIE REVIEW

CLASSIC MOVIES YOU MUST SEE

PLEASE POST YOUR SUGGESTIONS

The	Godfather	(1972)
-----	-----------	--------

The movie The Godfather is ¹based on the book by Mario Puzo. The movie was ²______ by Martin Scorsese. It ³_____ Marlon Brando as Vito Corleone and Al Pacino as his son, Michael. The movie won three Oscars in 1973 for Best Actor (Marlon Brando), Best Movie, and Best Screenplay.

The movie is ⁴_____ in New York in the 1940s and 50s. It was filmed on ⁵____ in New York and in Sicily.

The movie is about the Corleone family. Vito, "The Godfather," is head of one of the most powerful criminal families in the US. Don Vito is a fair but ruthless man, who runs his business by doing favors and expecting favors in return. The Corleones get involved in a war with other criminal families because they don't want to sell drugs. Don Vito is shot and he is seriously injured. While Don Vito is in the hospital, control of the family passes to his eldest son, Sonny. Sonny is a hothead, and with him in charge, the war between the various families becomes more violent. Don Vito's youngest son, Michael, has always stayed outside the family business, but when Don Vito is shot, he returns home to do what he can to help the family. He also takes his revenge against the people who are trying to kill his father. In the end, Sonny is shot and Michael becomes the new Godfather.

I strongly ⁶______ The Godfather. It has ⁷_____, drama, an unforgettable ⁸_____, and an important message: that violence never really solves anything. The two ⁹_____, The Godfather II and The Godfather III are also good, but the first movie is definitely my favorite.

Beautiful one-bedroom apartment in Mexico City

This apartment is perfectly situated on a quiet street in Mexico City's Reforma area.

It's a cozy, 750-square-foot apartment on the first floor of a three-story building. It has one bedroom with a queen-size bed, a spacious living / dining room, a modern, well-equipped kitchen, and a bathroom. There's a beautiful view of a flower-filled courtyard from the living room windows. The living room has a big table, which is ideal for having a meal with friends, and there is also a large flat-screen TV. The apartment has tile floors, air conditioning, satellite TV, and Wi-Fi Internet.

The Reforma area is a lively neighborhood near the center of Mexico City, with plenty of stores and cafes. The apartment is walking distance to Paseo de la Reforma, one of Mexico City's widest streets designed to look like a grand European boulevard. It's ten minutes away from a subway station and a bus stop, so you can visit the city very easily.

This apartment is ideal for a couple who would like to go sightseeing in this beautiful city. It's a non-smoking apartment, and pets are not allowed.

Beach villa in Hua Hin, Thailand

Hua Hin is a nite beautiful vacation resort town on the northern part of the Malay Peninsula, about 120 miles south of Bangkok.

Our house is nice. It has three double bedrooms, a living room, a nice kitchen, and four bathrooms. All the rooms have air conditioning, and the bedrooms all have an attached, private bathroom. There is a nice patio with a table and chairs, so you can eat outside. There is a nice view of the mountains in the distance. There is a nice yard with flower gardens and a swimming pool. There is also a hot tub, which is relaxing to use after a long day of sightseeing.

The house is near a nice beach, where you can play a lot of water sports. It's also a short drive to two floating markets where you can buy food, flowers, jewelry, and souvenirs.

This house is perfect for a family with children or for two or three couples. The house is not suitable for pets.

9 A MAGAZINE ARTICLE -ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES

a Read an article for a student magazine about the advantages and disadvantages of living without a TV. The computer has found ten mistakes (grammar, vocabulary, punctuation, and spelling). Can you correct them?

Living without a TV

Almost every family today ¹ have a TV, in fact probably more than one, and people everywhere spend hours watching it. But a few families choose to live without a TV because they think there are advantages.

The first advantage is that families spend more time ² talk to each other. Second, they spend more time doing more creative things like reading or painting. Third, they spend more time outdoors, and are usually ³ in gooder shape.

But on the other hand, there are also disadvantages. For example, children who don't have a TV may feel ⁴differents from ⁵there school friends, and often won't know what they are talking about. Also, it is not true that all TV ⁶showes are bad. There are good ones, like ⁷documentarys, and people who live without a TV may know less about ⁸whats happening in the world.

In conclusion, 9 althought living without a TV has some advantages, I think today it's unrealistic and that we should just try to turn the TV 10 out when there's nothing good on.

- b Read the article again. Then cover it, and in pairs, answer the questions from memory.
 - 1 What are the three advantages?
 - 2 What are the two disadvantages?
 - 3 Is the writer for or against having a TV?

c You are going to write a similar article about smartphones. First with a partner, make a list of the advantages and disadvantages.

10 A BIOGRAPHY

a Read a text about Mark Zuckerberg. Then rewrite the text with the extra information (sentences A–F) as relative clauses.

Mark Zuckerberg,

the American computer programmer, was one of the founders of Facebook.

In his teens he began to write software programs as a hobby. After graduating from high school he went to Harvard. While he was there he created a website called Facemash. It was shut down by the university, but it inspired him to create Facebook.

He left Harvard and moved to California with Dustin Moskovitz, and together they made Facebook an international success.

In 2012 Zuckerberg married Priscilla Chan.

Paragraph 1	A Mark Zuckerberg was born in New York in 1984
Paragraph 2	 B He studied computer science and sociology at Harvard C Facemash allowed students to share photos D He launched Facebook from his room in 2004
Paragraph 3	E Dustin Moskovitz had been his roommate

Listening

3 36))

Interviewer So tell me, how did you get involved in the movie, Dagmara?

Dagmara Well, as you probably know, Schindler's List was shot in Krakow, in Poland, which is where I live. I was a university student at the time studying English. The film company set up their production office here three months before they started shooting the film, and I got a job there as a production assistant, preparing and translating documents and the script.

Interviewer But how did you get the job as Steven Spielberg's interpreter?

Dagmara Well, it was a complete coincidence. Just before the shooting started, there was a big party in one of the hotels in K rakow for all the actors and the film crew, and I was invited, too. When I arrived at the party, the Polish producer of the film came up to me and said, "The woman who was going to interpret for Steven Spielberg can't come, so we need you to interpret his opening speech."

Interviewer How did you feel about that?

Dagmara I couldn't believe it! I was just a student

—I had no experience of interpreting — and now
I was going to speak in front of hundreds of people. I was so nervous that I drank a couple of glasses of champagne to give myself courage. I must have done a pretty good job though, because soon afterwards Spielberg came up to me to say thank you and then he said, "I'd like you to be my interpreter for the whole film." I was so stunned
I had to pinch myself to believe that this was happening to me.

3 37))

Interviewer So what exactly did you have to do?

Dagmara I had to go to the film set every day and translate Spielberg's instructions to the Polish actors, and also to the extras. I had to make them understand what he wanted them to do. It was really exciting, and I often felt as if I was a director myself.

Interviewer So, was it a difficult job?

Dagmara Sometimes it was really hard. The worst thing was when we had to shoot a scene again and again because Spielberg thought it wasn't exactly right. Some scenes were repeated as many as 16 times – and then sometimes I would think that maybe it was my fault – that I hadn't translated properly what he wanted, so I'd get really nervous. I remember one scene with lots of actors in it which we just couldn't get right, and Spielberg started shouting at me because he was stressed. Eventually we got it right and then he apologized, and I cried a little, because I was also very stressed – and after that it was all right again.

Interviewer So, was Spielberg difficult to work with?

Dagmara Not at all. I mean he was very demanding, I had to do my best every day, but he was really nice to me. I felt he treated me like a daughter. For instance, he was always making sure that I wasn't cold – it was freezing on the set most of the time – and he would make sure that I had a warm coat and gloves and things.

Interviewer Did you ever get to be an extra?

Dagmara Yes, twice! I was going to be in two party scenes, and I got to wear beautiful long dresses and high heels. Unfortunately, one scene didn't make it to the final cut of the film, and before we started shooting the other one I tripped walking down some stairs and twisted my ankle really badly. I was in so much pain that I couldn't take part in the filming, and that was the end of my acting career. I still have the photos of me looking like a girl from the 40s, though!

Interviewer Have you ever worked with Spielberg again?

Dagmara Yes. A year later he invited me to interpret for him again, this time during the premiere of Schindler's List in Poland, which was broadcast live on national television!

Before that, he had also asked me come to work as a production assistant on his next movie in Hollywood. I was very tempted and thought really hard about it, but I hadn't finished my studies yet, and all my family and friends were in Poland – so in the end I decided not to go.

Interviewer Do you regret it?

Dagmara Not at all. I had my moment, and it was unforgettable, but that was it!

3 47))

A few months ago I was with a Vietnamese friend of mine named Ny in California, and we were driving around the West Hollywood area, which is a pretty famous part of Los Angeles - you know - the Sunset Strip, Melrose Avenue, lots of cool shops and restaurants...and lots of movie stars!! Anyway, it was a hot, sunny day, and we were thirsty, so we stopped at a cafe for a cold drink and a snack. So, we sat down at an outside table waiting for the server when we saw a man walking toward us. He was wearing a crazy combination of clothing, and he kind of looked like a mess. He had a beard, long messy brown hair, and he was wearing a winter hat in the middle of summer! Ny said, "Oh, look at that poor man. He must be homeless. He looks like he hasn't taken a shower for some time. He's also really thin. He must be hungry - should I give him some money? She started to look in her bag for some money, but I looked at him again and just said, "Don't!" She couldn't understand why I didn't want her to give the man some money, and she thought I was being very mean and unfriendly.

When the man had gone past, I said, "Ny, that man isn't homeless. He's Russell Brand, the British comedian and actor." He's one of the funniest people in show business. And he definitely isn't homeless he has a house in the Hollywood Hills and an apartment in New York City! And he definitely doesn't need any money! He just enjoys wearing comfortable, old, mismatched clothing. In fact, Russell Brand often talks to the homeless people he sees on the streets and gives them money or buys them food. Even though he looks a little messy and scary, he's actually a very kind person. Ny was really surprised. She said that she thought all US celebrities dressed in designer clothes, and had perfect hair and makeup all the time. I told her that in the US, you can't always judge people by their appearance. A lot of people, even famous celebrities, like to dress in old, mismatched clothing because it's comfortable, and it helps them blend in with the crowd better so they can go quietly about their business.

Part 1

Gareth had only eight weeks for the experiment, during which time he would be teaching three days a week. His aim was to try to improve the boys' reading age by six months. On the other two days the boys would have normal classes with the girls.

His plan was based on his own experience of being a learner and from talking to educational experts. He had three main principles:

First, that it was essential to make the work feel like play. "If I can do that, the boys will learn," said Gareth. The second principle was competition. Gareth says, "Boys absolutely love competition! It has gone out of fashion in many schools, but I think it's really important. Boys have to learn to lose and to fail and to come back from that. If you've never done that until you go for your first job interview and don't get the job, then you've got a problem."

The third thing Gareth thought was important was to allow boys to take risks. All kinds of risks. Not just physical risks like climbing trees, but doing things like acting in front of other people. Doing things that are a little scary, but that are very motivating if you manage to do them.

Part 2

When Gareth started, he made some changes to the way the children were learning. The boys spent a lot of time outside, and they had PE (physical education) every day before regular classes began. They even made their own outdoor classroom. Gareth also tried to involve the boy's parents as much as possible in their education, and he visited them at their homes on several occasions.

Gareth set up three major activities for the boys to help improve their language skills. The first activity was a school debating competition against the girls. The topic that the children had to debate was "Computer games should be banned."

When they started to prepare for the debate, the boys weren't very enthusiastic, but soon they started to get more involved. In the end the girls won the debate, but the boys had learned to argue and make points, to express themselves better. They were disappointed not to have won, but they wanted to do it again.

Next, Gareth organized a Reading World Cup, where the boys had to read in teams. Some of the boys couldn't read very well, but they all got very excited about the World Cup and became much more enthusiastic readers! There was a prize for the winners, and this really motivated the boys.

Finally, the boys (working with the girls) had to write their own play and perform it at the local theater. The play they wrote was about Romans and aliens. All the children, boys and girls, worked really hard and although some of them felt very nervous before they performed the play, it was a great success and the boys especially were thrilled. Gareth said afterwards, "It was a risk, and it was scary – but it was good scary."

Part 3

The boys had a great time with Gareth as their teacher. But at the end of the eight weeks, had their reading really improved? In the last week of the quarter, they had to take their national reading exams. The exams were independently marked, and when the results were announced, the boys had made great progress – all of them had improved by six months and some of them had advanced the equivalent of two years in just eight weeks!

1 My dream house would be in one of our national parks like Yellowstone or Redwood. It would be totally green – I'd have solar panels and wind turbines, and I'd collect rainwater. The house would be made of wood and would be heated

- by wood fires. I would try to live off the land as much as possible, and I'd plant vegetables and fruit, and maybe have chickens. It would all be organic, with no pesticides or anything like that.
- My dream house would be in Paris. It'd be on the top floor of an old apartment building, and I'd have a view of the Eiffel Tower or Notre Dame. It would be full of furniture that I'd found in antique shops, places like that, and amazing paintings, one of which would turn out to be an undiscovered Picasso or Matisse. There would be a beautiful old dining table and chairs for candlelit dinners... then all I'd need would be the right person to share it with.
- My dream house would be an apartment in Soho in New York City. It wouldn't be too big - it'd just have a couple of bedrooms, and a huge living room with a home theater. It would be very modern and incredibly practical, with things like automatic temperature control, a kitchen with all the latest gadgets - and if possible a stove that would produce amazing meals on its own - I'm a lazy kind of guy.
- If I had to choose where to live, I'd choose Hawaii. So my dream house would be made of glass with the most amazing view of the beach from every room in the house, and it would have indoor and outdoor pools, and maybe a tennis court - I'm really into sports. It would also have a big indoor aquarium. There's something so peaceful about looking at fish. And fabulous bathrooms of course.

Paul Bad luck, mate.

Rob Nice shot.

Paul I've had years of practice.

Rob You used to play pool a lot at university.

Paul You did, too.

Rob Yeah. I don't really have the time anymore.

Paul Or anybody to play with.

Paul So what do you do in your free time?

Rob The magazine keeps me pretty busy. And when I'm free, I'm usually with Jenny.

Paul Ah. Your turn. Don't blow it.

Rob What is it?

Paul I was just thinking about you.

Rob What about me?

Paul Do you remember the great times we had at uni? You had such crazy hair - the last time I saw you it was blond!

Rob Don't remind me.

Paul Those were the days. But look at you now with your girlfriend and your 9 to 5 job. If you don't come back to London soon, you'll become an all-American boy!

Rob Come off it.

Paul It's true! I mean, just look at that shirt.

Rob What's wrong with my shirt?

Paul You look like a businessman! Did you buy it?

Rob Me? No. It was ... it was a present from Jenny.

Paul I thought so.

Rob What does that mean?

Paul Well, it's Jenny's taste.

Rob Yes, and I really like it.

Paul Jenny seems to know what she wants - and she probably gets it.

Rob That's one of the things I like about her. Terrible.

Paul You said it.

Rob Sorry, Paul. We've got to go.

Paul Oh come on, Rob. We haven't even finished

Rob Another time. Jenny's waiting for us. Paul Jenny. Right.

*[*4/27))

Paul Oh, yeah. That was good. So! What shall we do now?

Rob What do you want to do?

Paul Well... I haven't been on a dance floor for weeks now. I've got to move my body. Let's go dancing!

Jenny 1'm going running in the morning. Why don't vou join me?

Paul No, thanks. I'm not very keen on running. But I've read about this place called Deep Space, where they play great music. We could go there. Tenny A club

Paul Don't you feel like dancing?

Jenny Not on a Wednesday night. How about going to the late show at MOMA?

Paul MOMA? What's that?

Jenny MOMA. It's the Museum of Modern Art. There's a Kandinsky exhibition.

Paul That isn't exactly my idea of a great night out. Jenny What about staying in and watching a movie

Paul I'm in New York. I can watch TV anywhere. Jenny Who's that?

Rob It's a text from Kerri. She's doing a gig at the Bowery Ballroom.

Paul Kerriwho?

Rob Kerri Johnson. I interviewed her last week.

Paul Kerri Johnson? I've seen her play live. She's cool. Do you like her Jenny?

Jenny I have to admit I'm not crazy about her music ... or her for that matter.

Paul I didn't think so. So shall we go there?

Rob Why not? Actually Kerri's staying very near here and she doesn't know New York very well. We could meet her outside and go together.

Paul That's a great idea!

Rob I'll send her a text.

Jenny I think I might have an early night. You two can go on your own.

Rob Are you sure you don't mind?

Paul Of course she doesn't mind!

Jenny No, Rob, it's fine. I have another busy day tomorrow. You do too, actually.

Rob I know, we're meeting Don. I haven't forgotten.

Rob It's Kerri. She's on her way now.

Paul What are we waiting for? Let's go!

Jenny Hi Monica - it's not too late to call is it?

Monica Jenny! No, why? Are you OK?

Jenny I need to talk.

Monica Can you come over? Why don't you take a cab?

Jenny OK, thanks.

(4/30))

Jenny Rob?

Rob Hi, Jenny.

Jenny Are you OK? Where are you anyway? Rob I'm at home. I'm feeling terrible. We got back really late last night.

Jenny Now why doesn't that surprise me? You know, you're not a student anymore.

Rob I know. There was a party after the gig - Kerri invited us - and of course Paul said yes.

Jenny And this morning's meeting? In... ten minutes?

Rob That's why I'm calling. I'm not going to make it. I'm really sorry.

Jenny Rob! It's a very important meeting! I'll cover for you this time, but I won't be able to do it again.

Rob Ít won't happen again. I promise. Anyway, Paul's leaving.

Jenny He's leaving?

Rob That's right. He's off to Boston this afternoon. Jenny Maybe that's a good thing. I mean, it's not that I don't like Paul, but...

Rob Iknow, Iknow.

Jenny I have to go. Talk to you later.

Don Jenny, have you seen Rob? I wanted to have a word with him before the meeting and he isn't Jenny I know. He just called to say he can't make it. Don He what?

Jenny I was with him last night. He wasn't feeling very well. But it's OK. He told me everything I need to know for the meeting.

Don Oh. OK then.

Jenny You know Rob. He's such a professional.

Host We're talking about great new shopping websites and I think we have time for one more. Janice, can you tell us about it?

Janice Well, it's called Never liked it anyway dot com. It's a very creative name for a website, as you'll hear. This site was the idea of an American woman named Annabel Acton. She was living in New York City with her boyfriend, who was English. He had invited her to travel to London with him at Christmas to meet his family. But five days before Christmas, they broke up. Now, unlike some of us, Annabel didn't want to sit around crying and eating ice cream. She wanted to do something positive.

Host So what gave her the idea for the website? Janice Well, after the breakup Annabel was left with a plane ticket to London that she didn't need. She also had jewelry that she didn't want anymore, and she had tickets to a concert that she didn't want to go to without her boyfriend. She also had paintings that they had bought together, that she didn't want on her wall anymore. She didn't want any of these things herself, but she thought someone somewhere would probably like to buy them, and that's what gave her the idea to set up the website.

Host What exactly is it?

Janice Well, it's a website where people who have just broken up with a partner can sell presents and other things that they don't want any more, maybe because they remind them of their ex, or maybe, as the name suggests because they never liked these things anyway! And the idea, which I think is genius, is that they also tell the personal story behind the thing they're selling. Annabel calls it 'sell and tell'!

Host What kind of things do people sell on the website?

Janice Oh, everything - from something as small as a teddy bear to really expensive things like an engagement ring or a vacation. To give you an idea, today on the site one seller is offering a three-day honeymoon package at a luxury hotel in New York City, and a woman is selling her ex-boyfriend's car. And they're selling all these things at very good prices. So on neverlikeditanyway you can get a bargain, and also help someone wbo's going through a breakup.

Host Thanks lanice, and that's all we have time for today ...

- 1 I was at Sydney Airport, in Australia, and I got a taxi to take me to the hotel. A few minutes after he'd left the airport, the taxi driver said that his meter was broken, but that he would charge me $50, which was what he said the trip usually cost. It was my first time in Sydney and of course I didn't have a clue what the usual fare was, so I just said OK. But later when I was checking in to the hotel, I asked the receptionist what the usual taxi fare was from the airport, and she said about $35. I was really annoyed and I sent an email to the taxi company, but I never got a reply.
- I was traveling in the UK. It was a work trip, and I knew that I was going to have to answer a lot of emails during that time, so I booked a hotel in Liverpool where they advertised Wi-Fi in all the rooms. When I arrived it turned out the hotel charged £16 for 24 hours Wi-Fi, which is about the same as I pay for a month of Internet at home! I complained to the man at reception, but all he said was that I could use the Wi-Fi in the lobby, which was free. I wasn't very happy about it. Hotels used to make a lot of money from customers by charging a ridiculous amount for phone calls. Now that everybody uses their cell to make phone calls, some hotels now charge a ridiculous amount for Wi-Fi.
- I was in an Italian restaurant in New York City recently, and I ordered manicotti, which is a kind of pasta, a little like cannelioni, and it's filled with cheese and served with tomato sauce. Well, when it arrived, the tomato sauce was really hot, but the pasta and the filling were cold—it was like they were still frozen. Anyway, I called the waitress and she said that it couldn't be cold. So I said "Sorry, it is cold. Do you want to try it?" So she took it back to the kitchen, and later the manager came out and apologized, and when I finally got the dish, it was good, hot all the way through. But I'd had to wait a long time for it. But later the manager came out again and offered me a free dessert. So I had a deleicious tiramisu for free.

Johnson Bailey presented Man Candles. He argued that most candles smell like perfume and are designed for women. One day he was having some friends over to watch a football game, and his house smelled like old Chinese food and dirty clothes. The only candle he had at the time was a vanilla-scented one, and he didn't want his house to smell like perfume. That's why Bailey invented manly candles tbat smell like things men enjoy: basketballs, golf courses, the beach, popcorn, and barbecue sauce. He even has a horrible-smelling candle you can burn to get people you don't like - perhaps your motherin-law - out of your house. He tried to convince the Sharks to invest by passing out his candles and asking them to smell them. The Sharks most wanted to smell the bad candle, which is Bailey's best-selling candle.

Kim Nelson's idea was a cake business that sells homemade cakes across the US. These cakes are made from all natural ingredients like fresh oranges in the "Oh! Oh! Orange" cake or one pound of grated carrots in "Daisy's Carrot Cake." Kim came up with the idea because many people don't have the time or the talent to bake a delicious, homemade cake for special occassions like birthdays, graduations, or anniversaries. Kim says that she has a talent for baking cakes, and more importantly, she feels it's her passion. Kim's products are currently sold online in her local area, but she would like to increase production and sell more cakes across the US. The cake business is called Daisy Cakes.

The Sharks asked Johnson a lot of questions, for example they asked him how much the candles sell for (10–12 dollars a candle) and how much money they made in sales the year before ($53,000). Johnson explained that currently, he and his wife had put over $40,000 of their own money into this product. The Sharks also asked how the candles were made, to which he answered that he poured them all into their containers by himself – he didn't have any help in his entire candle-making process.

In the end, they decided that they weren't interested. Their main reason was they thought the business just wasn't big enough or interesting enough, so they couldn't believe that it would ever make any money.

The Sharks were impressed by Kim's presentation, and they immediately asked to try her cakes. They really loved her cakes and complimented her on their fresh and delicious taste. Even though the male Sharks liked Kim's product, they were concerned that her company had reached its potential – making a respectable $27,000 in the last three months. In the end, Barbara Corcoran, the only female Shark decided to invest $50,000 in Kim's business because she thought there was a market for Kim's product.

And since then?

Kim's Daisy Cakes are now being sold online across the US. She was able to pay Barbara Corcoran back in only three weeks! And she has expanded her business by offering new products like lemon curd.

Although the Sharks thought Johnson's candles were funny, it's a good thing they didn't invest in his company. Johnson's website has been shut down and his candles have disappeared from store shelves.

(5/6)

Apart from the hockey players, he also gives the examples of the Beatles, the most famous rock band of all time and Bill Gates, the founder of Microsoft. The Beatles were really lucky to be invited to play in Hamburg in 1960. The club owner who invited them usually only invited bands from London, but on one trip to the UK he met an entrepreneur from Liverpool who told him that there were some really good bands in that city. When the Beatles arrived in Hamburg, they had to work incredibly hard. They had to play for up to eight hours a night in the club seven nights a week. As John Lennon said later, "We got better and we got more confidence. We couldn't help it, with all the experience we got from playing all night long in the club." By 1964, when they became really successful, the Beatles had been to Hamburg four times, and had already performed live an estimated 1,200 times, far more than many bands today perform in their entire careers.

Bill Gates's huge stroke of good luck came in 1968, when the high school he was attending decided to spend some money they'd been given on a computer. This computer was kept in a little room that then became the computer club. In 1968, most colleges didn't have a computer club, let alone schools. From that time on Gates spent most of his time in the computer room because he and his friends taught themselves how to use it. "It was my obsession," Gates says of those early high school years. "I skipped sports. I went up there at night. We were programming on weekends. It would be a rare week that we wouldn't get 20 or 30 hours in." So Gates was unbelievably lucky to have access to a computer, but of course he also put in all those hours of practice, too.

Talent, Gladwell concludes, is obviously important, but there are many talented people out there. What makes just a few of them special is that they are lucky and that they put in far more hours of practice than the rest.

Part 1

Host And now it's time for our book of the week, which is The Winter of our Disconnect by Susan Maushart. Jeremy, to start with, it's a good title, isn't it?

Jeremy Yes, amazing. And it was a fascinating experiment and a good read.

Host Tell us about it.

Jeremy Well, Susan Maushart is a journalist who's raising three teenage children. She decided to do the experiment after reaching a point where she felt that the whole family, especially her children, were all living in their own little worlds, with headphones on, plugged into their laptops or their iPods or their smartphones and that they weren't relating to the other people in the family.

Andrew So it wasn't just her children who were permanently plugged into an electrical device?

Jeremy Well, she admits that she herself was addicted to her phone and to her iPod and her laptop and that she was constantly reading news sites and googling information, but it was really her children who were totally dependent on new technology. In the book she makes the interesting distinction between "digital immigrants" and "digital natives."

Chloe What does that mean?

Jeremy She describes herself as a digital immigrant, that's to say someone who didn't grow up with digital technology, which is really anyone who was born before 1980. Her children are digital natives, which means that they were born after computers and the Internet were already part of life.

Chloe Well, that's me then.

Jeremy Yes, well, the main difference, she says, is that digital immigrants use the technology, to find information or to listen to music, but digital natives live and breathe the technology. So for them living without it is like living without water, without electricity...in the dark ages.

Chloe What were the rules of the experiment?

Jeremy The family had to live for six months without using any electrical gadgets in the house with a screen. So no smartphones, no TVs, no laptops or computers, no video consoles, and no iPods. They were allowed to use technology at school or at friends' houses, or in Internet cafés, and they were allowed to use landline phones. But everything else was switched off for the whole six months.

Sally Six months? How on earth did she get the children to agree?

Jeremy She bribed them. She told them she was going to write a book about the experiment, and that they would share in any profits that she made from the book!

Sally Wow, that was very smart of her...

(5/20))

Part 2

Host So what were the results? Was it a positive experience?

Jeremy At the end of the book Susan says that it was a positive experience in every way. At first, of course, the kids complained bitterly; they kept saying they were bored. But then they they started to talk to each other again, to go and sit in each other's rooms and talk. They got interested in cooking and reading; they went to the movies together. They played CDs on the CD player and they actually sat and listened to the music instead of just having music on their headphones all the time as background music. And Susan's 15-year-old son started playing the saxophone again. He had stopped playing a few years before, but then he started taking lessons again and even started giving concerts... Oh, and the children said that they slept better!

Sally Oh, well that's good, yeah. What about the children's' schoolwork? I mean, nowadays we sort of assume that everyone needs the Internet to do research for homework and so on.

Jeremy In fact, the children's school report cards showed that they all improved. When they needed the Internet, they used the computers at school or at college (the eldest daughter was in college), or they went to friends' bouses. But when they did their homework they did it better than before because they weren't multi-tasking – they weren't doing homework and listening to music and sending messages all at the same time. So they concentrated better, and their schoolwork improved.

Andrew What about, Susan, the mother? Did she find it difficult to live without modern technology?

Jeremy What she found most difficult was writing her weekly article for the newspaper because she had to do it by hand, and not on her laptop. She says that at the beginning her hand used to really ache; she just wasn't used to writing by hand anymore. But that was just a small problem.

Chloe Any other negatives?

Jeremy Well, of course the phone bill for their landline was huge!

Chloe Has the experiment had a lasting effect?

Jeremy Susan says that it has. She thinks that they all get along much better as a family, her son is still playing the saxophone, and he sold his video console. They've all realized that we live in a digital world, but that we need to disconnect from time to time and to reconnect with the people around us. So they have new rules in the house – like no TVs in bedrooms and no TV in the kitchen where they eat. And no wasted hours on the Internet.

Sally Sounds great. That would be a good rule for me, too!

(5/21))

Part 3

Host OK, so imagine you all did the experiment. What would you miss the most? Sally?

Sally Well, I already live without the Internet many weekends because we have a house in the country in the middle of nowhere where there's no Internet service. So I know that what I would miss most is being able to google information, like the phone number of a restaurant, or what time a movie starts. Or even, dare I say it, the sports scores. I don't have a TV, so I wouldn't miss that, but I would miss not having the Internet.

Host Andrew?

Andrew Well, I just couldn't live without a computer or a laptop because I work from home so I don't have an office to go to, and I absolutely need the Internet, too. I couldn't do the experiment - I just wouldn't be prepared to go to an Interent café all day to work. Susan, the journalist who did the experiment, only had to write one column a week, but I work from home eight hours a day.

Host Jeremy.

Jeremy I think I could do it. I think I could easily live without any of these electrical gadgets at home. I mean, I have my office, so I could use the Internet there. I don't use an iPod; I still prefer to listen to CDs..

Chloe You old dinosaur.

Jeremy Yes, yes I know... and I don't watch much TV. I am very attached to my Blackberry, but I wouldn't mind using a regular phone for six months. I don't think there's anything I'd miss too much..

Host And finally Chloe, our only digital native. Chloe Well, I'm sorry, but l just wouldn't be prepared to even try the experiment, not even for a week let alone six months. I wouldn't be prepared to live without my phone. I use it for everything, calling, music, the Internet. So, no, I wouldn't do it.

Host Not even if you were offered money? Chloe It would have to be a huge amount of money. No, I'm definitely not going to do it!

(5,22))

Paul Yeah?

Jenny Hi, there. It's me. Should I come up?

Jenny Paul!

Paul That's right.

Jenny Uh... hi.

Paul Hi. Are you OK?

Jenny Yes, fine. Thanks. It's just that I um...

Paul What?

Jenny I wasn't expecting to see you.

Paul Really? Well, as you can see, I'm still here. It seems Rob just can't live without me. Yeah, he's going to miss me when I'm gone. But not for long. We'll meet up again when he goes back to London.

Jenny Goes back ...?

Paul Yeah, he told me last night that he was planning to leave New York pretty soon.

Jenny He what?

Rob Hi, Jenny. Do you want some breakfast? I've got bagels.

Jenny No thank you, Rob. Why don't you two enjoy them?!

Rob What's wrong?

Paul No idea. I just said you were planning to leave New York soon, and she ..

Rob You what? [didn't say that!

Paul You didn't have to. This New York life isn't you, Rob, and you know it.

Rob No, I don't! I like New York and Jenny's here. Paul Oh, come on! What's the big deal? It's not like you want to marry her.

Rob Well...

Paul What? You do?!

Rob Look Paul. I'm serious about New York, and I'm serious about Jenny. And I want you to leave. Today.

Paul You're joking, mate. Rob No, I'm not. I'll even buy the ticket.

Rob Hi, Jenny

Jenny Rob.

Rob Paul told me what he said to you, and it's not true. I'm not planning to leave New York.

Jenny Oh, really? Could you tell me why Paul is still in your apartment?

Rob Well, he couldn't get a ticket to Boston. Jenny But you told me he was going a few days ago. Or was that another lie?

Rob No, of course it wasn't! He couldn't get a ticket. The buses to Boston were all full. Jenny So do you know if he's got one now?

Rob I bought it! He's leaving this evening. But that isn't really the issue here, is it? You have to believe me - I don't want to leave New York!

Jenny How can [believe you? I know you're missing London because you said the same thing to Kerri at the restaurant. Look Rob, I'd like to know what you really want.

Rob What do you mean?

Jenny When you and Paul were together, it was like you were a different person.

Rob You know what Paul's like. What was I meant to do? But that isn't the kind of life I want anymore. I'm not like that.

Jenny I know you're not, but I wonder if you really want to be here. I wonder if ...

Rob Jenny, what is it?

Jenny Forget it.

Rob Jenny... what are you worrying about? Jenny I don't know if this is going to work out.

Rob You're not serious.

Jenny I'm just not sure if we want the same things anymore.

Rob That's crazy...

Don Jenny - oh, good morning, Rob.

Rob Don.

Don I need a word. Can you tell me what you decided at the last meeting?

Jenny Right away, Don. Rob was just leaving.

(5/26))

Rob But what can I do, Jenny? What can I say to convince you I'm serious?

Jenny I don't know, Rob

Rob Wait! What Paul said just isn't true. Jenny It isn't just what Paul said. It's obvious you want to go back.

Rob Of course I miss London, but I love my life here. What proof do you want of my commitment to New York, to you, to everything!

Jenny I don't know.

Rob There must be something I can do.

Jenny Look, we're going to see my parents later. I don't want us to be late.

Rob We won't be late. And I won't forget the chocolates this time either.

Jenny Well, that's a start, I guess.

Barbie

Until the late 1950s, most American girls played with baby dolls, which often limited their imaginations to mother or caregiver roles. At around the same time, Ruth Handler noticed that her pre-teen daughter was playing with paper dolls, giving them adult roles such as actresses or secretaries. On a trip to Europe, Ruth saw an adult-figured doll in Germany and brought several of them back to the US. Handler had the idea that girls could expand their imagination and play-acting roles with a doll that looked like an adult. So she and engineer Jack Ryan redesigned the doll for the US market and called her Barbie after Ruth's daughter, Barbara. The first Barbie dolls were produced in 1959 and sold over 350,000 in the first year.

Barbie is still popular today, and billions have been sold around the world since 1959. Mattel, Inc. the company that produces Barbie, reports that 90 percent of American girls between the ages of three and ten have a Barbie doll.

The Chrysler Building

The Chrysler Building has been one of the most iconic New York City landmarks since it was completed in 1930. Árchitect William Van Alen designed the Art Deco building for Walter P. Chrysler, who owned the automobile company Chyrsler Corporation. In fact, Van Alen modeled many of the building's decorative features using Chrysler car parts as inspiration. For example, the decorations on the outside of the building for the thirty-first floor are fashioned after engine parts from a 1929 Chrysler car.

Today, the Chrysler Building is still considered one of the best examples of Art Deco architecture in the US. In fact, it was voted New York City's favorite building in 2005 by Skyscraper Museum. In addition, the building appears regularly in movies and TV shows that film in New York City.

The "LOVE" Sculpture

In 1965, artist Robert Indiana had an idea for a painting with the word "LOVE" as the main focus. He decided to break the word up into two lines, putting the "LO" on top of the "VE." He then tilted the "O" a little, and an iconic American design was born. In fact, it became so popular that the Museum of Modern Art and the United States Postal Service asked Indiana to create versions of his "LOVE" painting for cards and stamps. In the early 1970s, Indiana made a series of "LOVE" sculptures for display in public parks. The first of these "LOVE" sculptures was placed in New York City, on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. Additional "LOVE" sculptures were placed in New Orleans, Philadelphia, Vancouver, Tokyo, and Singapore, as well as many other cities.

Unfortunately, Indiana didn't make much money from his "LOVE" paintins and sculptures. He never signed his paintings or applied for copyright, so he didn't have legal protection against the many imitations of his work.

Air Jordan Sneakers

When Michael Jordon started playing basketball for the Chicago Bulls in 1984, he had special Nike sneakers designed for him by Peter Moore. These sneakers were called the Air Jordan 1, or more simply - Air Jordans. They were red and black - the Chicago Bulls's colors. Because the sneakers did not have any white on them, Jordan was fined $5,000 by the National Basketball Association each time he wore them for a game.

Every year since then, Nike has created a new pair of Air Jordans to sell. In 1987, Tinker Hatfield took over the design responsibilites for these sneakers, and he as been associated with them ever since. Hatfield introduced the Jumpman logo on the sneakers, which is a silhouette of Michael Jordan dunking a basketball with his legs spread wide. In 2010, Hatfield designed the Jordan 2010s to celebrate the sneakers' twenty-fifth anniversary.

Interviewer Good morning and thank you for coming, Mr. Ryan – or should it be Detective Ryan - you were a detective with the Los Angeles Police Department, weren't you?

Detective Ryan Yes, that's right. For twenty-five years. I retired last year.

- Interviewer People today are still fascinated by Natalie Wood's death even though it was more than 30 years ago. That's incredible, isn't it?
- Detective Ryan Well, it's not really that surprising. People are always interested in unsolved mysteries – and Natalie Wood was a well-know and talented actress.
- Interviewer Now, to be clear, none of the people on the boat the night Ms. Wood died were or are suspects. But – can you tell us who was on the boat that night?
- Detective Ryan That is correct none of them were or are suspects. But in order to get a better understanding about what happened that night, it is important to know who was on the boat. So, the people were her husband, movie and TV actor Robert Wagner; her friend and movie actor Christopher Walken; and the captain of the boat, Dennis Davern.

(5/36))

- Interviewer Recently, the LA County Coroner's Office re-examined Ms. Wood's cause of death because of some new information about the bruises and scratches that were found on her body the night she died.
- Detective Ryan Yes, that's correct. This new information suggests that Ms. Wood may have been hit or beaten right before she died. And the Coroner changed Ms. Wood's original cause of death from "accidental drowning" to "drowning and other undetermined factors."
- Interviewer So what does this mean for the other people on the boat?
- Detective Ryan Officially, it doesn't mean anything for them. They still aren't suspects.
- Interviewer And you don't think they're suspects, do you?
- Detective Ryan No, I don't. I don't think any of them can be considered suspects without some kind of convincing evidence.
- Interviewer What about Robert Wagner? There are reports that he was jealous of his wife's friendship with Mr. Walken.
- Detective Ryan Well, yes, Mr. Wagner wrote in his book Pieces of My Heart that he was jealous of the relationship, and that he and Mr. Walken argued that night on the boat. But that doesn't make him a suspect.
- Interviewer And Christopher Walken, Ms. Wood's friend and co-star?
- Detective Ryan Mr. Walken has remained mostly silent about what happened that night, but he has talked to the police.
- Interviewer The boat captain changed his story about what happened that night, didn't he? That he originally lied to police the night Natalie died.
- Detective Ryan Yes. Mr. Davern told a TV news program that he lied about the events of that night. He now says that Mr. Wagner and Ms. Wood had an argument, and that Ms. Wood went missing shortly after. Mr. Davern also claims that Mr. Wagner delayed contacting the police, implying that Mr. Wagner was responsible for Ms. Wood's death.
- Interviewer Do you believe the captain's new story?
- Detective Ryan Well, no. I think the timing of his new story is suspicious since he released it so close to the thirty-year anniversary of her death. I think he was looking to make some money by bringing this sad story back into the news.
- Interviewer So, what do you think happened that night?
- Detective Ryan I can't tell you because I don't know.
- Interviewer So you don't think we'll ever solve the mystery?
- Detective Ryan No, I wouldn't say that. I think one day the mystery will be solved. Some new evidence will appear and we'll be able to say that Natalie Wood's mysterious death is finally solved. But right now, it's still a mystery, and people like a good mystery.

reported speech: sentences and questions

reported sentences

4 33)) direct statements reported statements She said (that) she liked traveling. "I like traveling." "I'm leaving tomorrow." He told her (that) he was leaving the next day. "I'll always love you." He said (that) he would always love me. "I passed the exam!" She told me (that) she had passed the exam. "I've forgotten my keys." He said (that) he had forgotten his keys. "I can't come." She said (that) she couldn't come. "I may be late." He said (that) he might be late. "I must go." She said (that) she had to go.

- We use reported speech to report (i.e., to tell another person) what someone said.
- When the reporting verb (said, told, etc.) is in the past tense, the tenses in the sentence that is being reported usually change like this:

present > past will > would simple past / present perfect > past perfect

When tenses don't change

When you report what someone said very soon after they said it, the tenses often stay the same as in the original sentence.

Adam "I can't come tonight."

I've just spoken to Adam and he said that he can't come tonight. Jack "I really enjoyed my trip."

Jack told me that he really enjoyed his trip.

- Some modal verbs change, e.g., can>could, may>might, must>had to. Other modal verbs stay the same, e.g., could, might, should, etc.
- You usually have to change the pronouns, e.g., "I like jazz." Jane said that she liked jazz.
- Using that after said and told is optional.

• If you report what someone said on a different day or in a different place, some other time and place words can change, e.g., tomorrow>the next day, here>there, this>that, etc.

"I'll meet you here tomorrow." He said he'd meet me there the next day.

say and tell

Be careful – after said don't use a person or an object pronoun:

He said he was tired. NOT He said me...

After told you must use a person or pronoun: Sarah told Cally that she would call her. NOT Sarah told that she...

He told me he was tired. NOT He told he was...

"Did she call?" She asked him if he was married.

"Bid she call?" He asked me whether she had called.

"What's your name?" I asked him what his name was.

"Where do you live?" He asked me where I lived.

- When you report a question, the tenses change as in reported statements.
- When a question doesn't begin with a question word, add if (or whether).
 "Do you want a drink?" He asked me if | whether I
- You also have to change the word order to subject + verb, and not use do | did.

third conditional

If I'd known about the meeting, I would have gone. If James hadn't gone to the training course, he wouldn't have met his wife.

You wouldn't have lost your job if you hadn't been late every day.

Would you have gone to the party if you'd known Lisa was there?

- · We usually use third conditional sentences to talk about how things could have been different in the past, i.e., for hypothetical / imaginary situations. Compare: Yesterday I got up late and missed my train. (= the real situation) If I hadn't got up late yesterday, I wouldn't have missed my train. (= the hypothetical or imaginary past situation)
- To make a third conditional, use if + past perfect and would have + past participle.
- The contraction of both had and would is 'd.
- We can use might or could instead of would to make the result

If she'd studied harder, she might have passed the exam.

relative clauses

defining relative clauses (giving essential information)

1 Julia's the woman who / that works in the office with me.

It's a self-help book that / which teaches you how to relax.

That's the house where I was born.

2 Is Frank the man whose brother plays for the Lakers?

It's a plant whose leaves change color in spring.

3 I just got a text from the girl (who / that) I met on the flight to Paris.

This is the new phone (that / which) I bought yesterday.

To give important information about a person, place, or thing use a relative clause (= a relative pronoun + subject) + verb.

- 1 Use the relative pronoun who | that for people, that | which for things | animals, and where for places.
- That is more common than which in defining clauses.
 - You cannot omit who | which | that | where in this kind of clause. NOT Julia's the woman works in the office with me.
- 2 Use whose to mean "of who" or "of which."
- 3 who, which, and that can be omitted when the verbs in the main clause and the relative clause have a different subject, e.g., She's the girl I met on the plane.
 - where and whose can never be omitted, e.g., NOT Is that the woman dog barks?

non-defining relative clauses (giving extra non-essential information)

This painting, which was painted in 1860, is worth millions (5 30)) of dollars.

Last week I visited my aunt, who's nearly 90 years old. Burford, where my grandfather was born, is a beautiful little town. My neighbor, whose son goes to my son's school, has just remarried.

- Non-defining relative clauses give extra (often non-essential information) in a sentence. If this clause is omitted, the sentence still makes sense.
 - This painting, which was painted in 1860, is worth millions of dollars.
- Non-defining relative clauses must go between commas (or a comma and a period).
- In these clauses, you can't leave out the relative pronoun (who, which, etc.)
- In these clauses, you can't use that instead of who | which. NOT This painting, that was painted in 1860, is worth millions of dollars.

This painting, which was painted in 1860, is worth millions of dollars.

a Complete with who, which, that, where, or whose.

- 5 Stieg Larsson, _____ books form the Millennium Trilogy, died in 2004.
- 6 My computer is a lot faster than the one ______ you bought.
- 7 The Mona Lisa, _____ has been damaged several times, is now displayed behind bulletproof glass.
- 8 Look! That's the woman _____ dog bit me last week.
- 9 On our last vacation we visited Stratford-Upon-Avon, ______Shakespeare was born.
- 10 We all went to the game except Marianne, _____ doesn't like basketball.
- 11 That man _____ you saw at the party was my boyfriend!
- 12 That's the park _____ I learned to ride a bike.

- b Look at the sentences in a. Check ✓ the sentences where you could leave out the relative pronoun.
- c Add commas where necessary in the sentences.
 - Caroline, who lives next door to me, is beautiful.
 - 1 This is the place where John crashed his car.
 - 2 The museum that we visited yesterday was amazing.
 - 3 Beijing which is one of the world's biggest cities hosted the 2008 Olympic Games.

On location at Knebworth House

nebworth House is famous worldwide for the major open-air rock concerts that have been held on its grounds since 1979. Knebworth is in the southeast England, and the Lytton family have lived there for over 500 years. The house itself is one of the oldest stately homes in the UK. It is also one of the most popular locations for the world's filmmakers.

Not surprisingly, the Gothic architecture of the house appealed to American movie director Tim Burton when he saw it. He was in the UK shooting a new version of the movie Batman at the time. He thought that the façade of the building would be perfect as the exterior of Wayne Manor, the home of Batman. But the inside of Wayne Manor was actually shot at another big house in the same area – Hatfield House.

The inside of Knebworth House has also been used in many movies. An important scene from the 2010 Oscar-winning movie The King's Speech was shot in the ballroom. This movie was made by the British director Tom Hooper. It starred Colin Firth as the young King George VI of England, who had a speech impediment. The ballroom was the venue for a party that was held by his older brother Edward. In a corner of the room, Edward tells George that he is planning to marry divorced American woman, Wallis Simpson, something that makes it impossible for him to be King of England. It is George who becomes King instead.

And, of course, like many other historic buildings in the UK, Knebworth has made an appearance in the Harry Potter movies. In the fourth movie of the series, Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire, a holiday dance is held in Hogwarts School. Before the dancing starts, there is a scene where one of Harry's friends appears in a beautiful long dress. The staircase that she descends while her friends look on in amazement is, in fact, the one in Knebworth House.

These are just a few of the famous scenes filmed at Knebworth House. To discover more, why not visit Knebworth yourself? The house is only 27 miles from London, and is easy to get to by car or by train. Knebworth House is a must for all movie lovers visiting the UK.

Photoshopping: how much is too much?

Today, it is normal for magazines to show pictures of models and

$ 0000°

On the other hand, health organizations have warned that digitally altering photographs may be dangerous. They say Photoshopped images are not realistic, and may have a negative effect on people.

Psychologists agree with the health organizations. They say some people try so hard to look like the pictures in magazines that they get sick. In some cases, they want to be as thin as the models and so they stop eating enough. When they realize that it is impossible to look so good, they get depressed. This doesn't only happen to young girls, but it can happen to people of all ages. So what can be done to keep everybody happy? Two researchers at Dartmouth University in New Hampshire, think they have found the answer.

Professor Hany Farid and Doctor Eric Klee have developed a computer program that can detect how much Photoshopping has been used on an image. Their software gives a rating from 1 to 5 to the image -1 for a few changes, and 5 for a lot of changes. Farid and Klee's idea is that publishers include the rating next to the image. That way, consumers will be able to figure out how realistic the image is.

News of Farid and Klee's system has come out at the same time as people have started criticizing the use of Photoshopping. They say that some advertisers are going too far with it. Recently, the actress Rachel Weisz appeared in an ad for an anti-aging beauty cream. In the ad, Ms. Weisz looked like a teenager — in fact, she's in her early forties. There were a lot of complaints about the image and the ad was eventually banned. Farid and Klee's system could solve two problems at the same time. First, it would serve as a kind of health warning for consumers, and second, it may stop advertisers from relying on Photoshopping so much.

	a hagwon?
	1 sleep		3 study
	2 meet friends		4 have lunch

When is it time to stop studying?

t's 10 p.m. and six government employees are out checking the streets of Seoul, South Korea. But these are not police officers looking for teenagers who are behaving badly. Their mission is to find children who are still studying. And stop them.

Education in South Korea is very competitive. The aim of almost every schoolchild is to get into one of the country's top universities. Only the students with the best grades get a place. The school day starts at 8 a.m. and students finish studying somewhere between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. at night. This is because many go to private academies called hagwon after school. Around 74 percent of all students attend a hagwon after their regular classes finish. A year's course costs, on average, $2,600 per student. In Seoul, there are more private tutors than schoolteachers, and the most popular ones make millions of dollars a year from online and in-person classes. Most parents rely on private tutoring to get their children into a university.

With so much time spent in the classroom, all that students in South Korean high schools do is study and sleep. Some of them are so exhausted that they cannot stay awake the next day at school. It is a common sight to see a teacher explaining the lesson while a third of the students are asleep on their desks. The teachers don't seem to mind. There are even special pillows for sale that fit over the arms of the chairs to make sleeping in class more comfortable. Ironically, the students spend class time sleeping so that they can stay up late studying that night.

The South Korean government has been aware of the faults in the system for some time, but now they have passed some reforms. Today, schoolteachers have to meet certain standards or take additional training courses.

However, the biggest challenge for the government is the hagwons. Hagwons have been banned from having classes after 10 p.m., which is why there are street patrols looking for children who are studying after that time. If they find any in class, the owner of the hagwon is punished and the students are sent home. It's a strange world, where some children have to be told to stop studying while others are reluctant to start.

 - 3 The most interesting houses to visit in London

Are you interested in the history of your house? If you are, then you might want to get in touch with a house historian. A house historian's job is to find out what has happened to a particular house in the past. They try to discover who built the house, who has lived in the building since it was built, and what was on the site of the building before. Their research can uncover all kinds of interesting information.

We spoke to house historian Tracy Collins, who told us some of her stories. One of the houses she had to research was an apartment at 200 Oxford Street in London. She discovered that the author George Orwell had once stayed with the owners of the apartment. He had slept in the smallest bedroom in the apartment, which was very dark. Later, when he wrote his novel 1984, he used the room as the inspiration for the famous Room 101. On another occasion, she was looking into the story of an apartment building in Orchard Court, also in London. She found out that the apartment had been used by spies during the World War II. First of all, the spies were invited to the building for a job interview. If they were successful, they took a training course. After the course, they returned to the apartment for their instructions. Then, they were sent on a mission. But Tracy's third story is even more dramatic. When she was investigating a house in another part of London, she discovered that a murder had happened there!

However, house historians do not only focus on one particular house. They also find out about the area where the house was built. Some areas are completely different now than they were in the past. One example is an area in Central London called Belgravia. Today, it is one of the richest neighborhoods in the world, but in the early nineteenth century, it was a poorer area. People used to go there during the day to hang their laundry or to collect plants for food. At night, many people would avoid the area because it was full of criminals.

If you can't afford to pay a professional to research the history of your house, you can try to research the past yourself. The best place to start is to find all the official documents belonging to your house. These should give you some idea of who the previous owners were. After that, you should go to the office that has the official documents of your area. Some of these go back hundreds of years! You may not find out anything particularly interesting about your house, but you'll definitely to enjoy the search.

 - 4 How many islands do you visit on the Statue of Liberty tour?
 - 5 What time does the bike tour around Central Park leave?
 - 6 What day can you visit MoMA in the evening?_

What to do in New York

To explore New York, you'll need a map and a MetroCard. Maps are available at the Visitor Information Center and you can buy a MetroCard at any of the subway stations. A seven-day pass costs $30, and you can use it on the subways and city buses. Below are some places you might like to visit.

Empire State Building

Take an elevator to the 86th floor to get the best views of the city. Come at 8:30 a.m. to avoid the crowds, or try visiting during lunch and dinner hours from Monday to Wednesday when it's quieter. An adult ticket is $25, or you can get an express pass for $50. Buy your ticket online to reduce your time standing in line.

Statue of Liberty

This famous New York landmark is only accessible by ferry. You should get your tickets in advance either online, by phone, or in person at the ferry departure points. An adult ticket costs $24 and includes a tour of Liberty Island and a visit to the Immigration Museum on Ellis Island.

Central Park

Central Park is very big, so the best way to see it is by bike. It costs $20 to rent one for two hours and ride around the park on your own, or you can book a tour, which costs about $47 per person. The tour leaves daily at 9 a.m.

MoMA

MoMA is the most influential museum of modern art in the world, so it's definitely worth a visit. There are famous works by Picasso, Kandinsky, Andy Warhol, and many, many more. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. (8 p.m. on Fridays) and tickets are $25 for adults.

Top tips for safe online shopping

US shoppers spent $202 billion buying items online in 2011. Experts predict that our spending will increase to $327 billion by 2016. Read on to find out how you can protect yourself when you are shopping online.

1 E

When you buy things on the Internet, there is always a chance that something may go wrong. The product could be broken when you get it, or it might not turn up at all. If this happens, your credit card will offer you the best protection. Some credit cards allow you to dispute a purchase, meaning the credit card company will stop payment on a purchase until the matter is resolved. This is why a credit card is the best way to pay.

2

Make sure that your device, for example your laptop or tablet, is safe to use at all times. It should be protected by up-to-date antivirus software, and you should also install a personal firewall, which will stop hackers from attacking your system. Make sure that your firewall is turned on before you start shopping, and when you finish be sure to log out of the system, especially if you share your computer with other people.

3 _

Take a minute to look at the website before you buy anything. Check that the company has a geographical address as well as a landline telephone number, and write down these details. It is generally better to use sellers that you know about or ones that have been recommended to you.

4

Somewhere on the seller's website, there should be a list of all your rights (for example, what to do if you have a problem with the item you bought, or if it hasn't arrived). Make sure you read this before you decide to shop there. If you can't find the list, you should probably choose a different website.

5 __

A special icon on your screen will tell you if the website you are using is safe. The icon is in the shape of a padlock, and you can find it on the browser bar at the top or bottom of the screen. Another indication of a safe website is its address. The address should begin with "https" and not "http" – the s stands for secure.

6 _

The final stage of online shopping is the order confirmation. This is proof that you have bought a product from this company, and it contains the special reference number for your order. You should always print this information and keep it somewhere safe – you might need it if there is a problem.

4 READING

a Read the article once. Which job / jobs require a special qualification?

Do something different and get a super salary!

Would you like your friends to be impressed by your job? Do you want to earn a better salary? Here are some of the strangest jobs around that pay over $100,000 per year.

A Ethical hacker

What they do

A hacker doesn't usually have permission to enter a company's computer system. But an ethical hacker is actually employed by a company to take care of the system. Ethical hackers have to protect a company's IT network from real hackers. Their job is to stop professional criminals from entering the company's system to steal confidential information.

How to get a job

After getting a degree in IT, you have to work in computers for a few years until you have enough experience in programming. After that, you need to get a special qualification called the Certified Ethical Hacker (CEH) certificate, which lets you work as an ethical hacker. Salaries start between $50,000 and $100,000, depending on your experience and where you work.

B Golf-ball diver

What they do

Not all of the golf balls on a golf course end up in the hole on the green. In fact, golfers hit a surprisingly high number of them into the lake. Golf-ball divers do exactly what the job title suggests: they dive into the lake to collect the balls. Professional divers only work during the day. They have to wear special diving equipment, as well as a pair of thick waterproof gloves to keep their hands from getting cold.

How to get a job

To be a golf-ball diver, you need an advanced certificate in scuba diving. Once you have the right qualifications, you can choose to work for a company or to work for yourself. If you work for a company, the company will organize your schedule for you, whereas if you're self-employed, you have to contact the golf courses yourself. Golf-ball divers are paid between seven and 12 cents per ball, and on an average day, they can collect about 4,000 balls. If you work from 7 a.m. to noon four days a week, you can earn up to $100,000 per year.

C Forensic dentist

What they do

Forensic dentists spend most of their time identifying dead bodies. When a body is found, the dentist looks at the teeth and checks the records of other dentists to try and discover who the person was. If they don't find any information to match the dead person's teeth, the forensic dentist has to build up a profile about them. This profile contains information such as the person's sex, age, height, weight, and diet. Forensic dentists often work closely with the police and they sometimes have to give evidence in court.

How to get a job

First, you need to get a degree in dentistry and after that, you can take a postgraduate course to become a forensic dentist. You have to work in a laboratory for many years until you are promoted to department head. The starting salary is between $69,000 to $146,000 per year, but forensic dentists who go to court can earn up to $180,000.

A lucky escape

A ___ After he had seen the pictures of the crash, Mr. Hamilton called emergency services. The police came immediately and an ambulance arrived on the scene soon after. A spokesperson from the ambulance service said that the couple both had minor injuries, but only one of them had been taken to the hospital. A neighbor said that she had seen the young couple having an argument in the car when the accident happened.

B____ Instead of going downstairs to talk to the couple in his yard, Mr. Hamilton went to look at the pictures on his security cameras. He had installed the cameras a few years earlier to deter people from stealing the potted plants outside his front door. The Hamiltons live on the corner of a road that leads to the main road, and passersby can easily step over the low wall that surrounds his yard. When he played back the pictures of the accident, he could not believe his eyes.

C 1 An elderly couple from Central England, had a shock last night after they had gone to bed. Seventy-five-year old Howard Hamilton and his wife were just falling asleep when they heard a big bang in their front yard. They both jumped straight out of bed to look out the window and see what had happened. What they saw was a badly damaged car lying in their front yard. Next to the car there was a young couple hugging each other. Once Mr. Hamilton realized that nobody had been hurt, he decided to go and find out what had caused the accident.

D ___ Apparently, this is the fourth time that a car has driven through the wall of Mr. Hamilton's yard. This is because drivers often go around the corner too fast, and lose control of their vehicles. Mr. Hamilton's sister Joyce, who lives next door, said that it had been lucky that nobody had been walking on the sidewalk. She said that she didn't know what would have happened if there had been somebody there. Regarding the number of accidents that have happened on the corner, she said, "We're getting used to it."

E ___ On the recording, he saw that the girlfriend had been driving the car. He watched her turn the corner and lose control of the car. The car crashed right through the wall of his yard and came to a stop in the middle of the lawn. But the most dramatic thing is what had happened to her boyfriend. Before the crash, the sunroof of the car had been open. When the car hit the wall, Mr. Hamilton saw the boyfriend fly out of the sunroof and land heavily on the lawn. Miraculously, he was not hurt. Instead, he got up, and went to find his girlfriend. She didn't seem to be badly injured either – she appeared to be wearing her seat belt when the accident happened.

ave you ever dropped a drink on your laptop? If you have, you'll remember the panic when you thought that your machine would never work again. If you haven't, it may well happen to you in the future. Spilling drinks on a laptop is a common occurrence. Just in case it does happen, here are some basic tips that tell you what you should do.

The effect of the drink on your laptop depends on what it is. Water and green tea generally cause the least damage. The worst drinks to spill are those that contain milk and sugar, such as hot drinks like coffee and tea, and soft drinks like soda or lemonade.

What happens to your laptop also depends on what you do immediately after the spill. The first thing you should do is unplug the machine and take the battery out. This will hopefully stop any electrical damage. Then, you should turn it upside down and stop the liquid from getting to the motherboard. This is where some of the most important parts of the computer are, and if it gets wet, your laptop may be damaged permanently.

The next step is to clean up as much of the liquid as quickly as possible. If you don't have a cloth to do this, use some tissues instead. Try to touch the keyboard lightly instead of wiping it with the tissue.

If you spilled a lot of liquid, you'll have to work harder to save your machine. Put it near a window or somewhere with cold air, and shake it gently to get the liquid out. It might help if you take off the bottom of the case so that you can take out the hard drive. If you do this, remember not to touch any of the electronics. When you have done as much as you can, leave the laptop somewhere warm to dry. This will take at least a day. Do not use a hair dryer because this will make the machine dirty.

When you think the laptop is dry, turn it back on to see if it works. If you only spilled a little clean water, you might be lucky and the machine may turn on right away. However, you'll probably have problems if the drink was a large, milky coffee with lots of sugar in it. If your laptop still doesn't work, look at the keyboard and try taking it apart to clean it better. However, if you've gone this far, it's probably time to think about getting some help. You can either take the laptop to be repaired, or buy a new one. And in the future, remember to drink your coffee at someone else's desk!

	Read the article again. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

1	Not many people spill drinks on their laptops.	F

1	People made bread in the shape of bagels in many different cultures.	T
2	Bagels were first made in Austria.
3	They were made by Jewish bakers.	_
4	Bagels first came to the US in 1900.	_
5	They became popular all over America in the 1960s.
6	New inventions were used to sell bagels across America.
7	One of the reasons bagels are popular is because they stay fresh longer than bread.

A Short History of the Bagel

The bagel is known around the world as a typically New York type of food. But it has a surprising and unusual history that goes back many years.

The basic idea of a bread roll with a hole is centuries old. In Roman times, soldiers ate hard bread called buccellatum, and in China there is similar-shaped traditional bread called girde. The ancient Egyptians ate a bagel-like snack, too, and there are even more examples from around the Mediterranean area.

But it was in Poland that today's bagel really began. According to legend, it was the product of the 1683 Battle of Vienna. The Polish king, Jan Sobieski, had saved Austria from the Turkish invaders. To celebrate, the Jewish bakers of Kraków made a roll in the shape of the king's stirrup – the metal objects you put your feet in when you ride a horse – and called it a "buegel" (from the German word for stirrup). There is, however, no evidence to show whether this was true or not, but the story still remains today.

It is unclear when the first bagels made their way to the United States, but by 1900, there were 70 bakeries that sold bagels on the Lower East Side of New York. What is also certain is that immigrants from Eastern Europe, with their cravings for the foods of the old country, sparked the New York bagel craze.

It was the 1950s that were the real turning point. As Jewish people began to move to other parts of New York, they started to share their traditional food with the rest of the city. Bagels were mentioned in a popular cookbook of the time, and demand started to grow across America. To meet this demand, a baker named Murray Lender began to use recent inventions like the freezer and plastic packaging to distribute freshly made bagels across America. Soon, Lender's bagels were available in almost every supermarket, and today they are part of a typical American diet and available all over the world.

But why has the bagel endured through all this time? Possibly because of its heroic legend, but also because it has the advantage of lasting longer than freshly baked bread. If it gets slightly stale, it can be dunked in hot liquid to soften it. So it lasts long, can be eaten in many ways, and of course tastes delicious.

The Thirty-Nine Steps

Introduction:

Richard Hannay, the narrator, has just returned to London from Africa. A mysterious man called Franklin Scudder appears outside his flat one night, and tells Hannay about a group of people he met who are trying to push Europe towards a war. He believes only the Greek Prime Minister, Constantine Karolides, can stop the war. Karolides will be in London soon, and Scudder believes there is a plan to kill him then. Scudder believes he can stop this plan, but only if people think he is dead...

Part 1

I was beginning to like this strange little man. I gave him another drink and asked him why he thought he was now in danger himself.

He took a large mouthful. "I came to London by a strange route – through Paris, Hamburg, Norway, and Scotland. I changed my name in every country, and when I got to London, I thought I was safe. There's a man watching this building and last night somebody put a card under my door. On it was the name of the man I fear most in the world.

"So I decided I had to 'die.' Then they would stop looking for me. I got a dead body – it's easy to get one in London, if you know how – and I had the body brought to my flat in a large suitcase. The body was the right age, but the face was different from mine. I dressed it in my clothes and shot it in the face with my own gun. My servant will find me when he arrives in the morning and he'll call the police. I've left a lot of empty bottles in my room. The police will think I drank too much and then killed myself." He paused. "I watched from the window until I saw you come home, and then came down the stairs to meet you."

It was the strangest of stories. However, in my experience, the most extraordinary stories are often the true ones. And if the man just wanted to get into my flat and murder me, why didn't he tell a simpler story? "Right," I said. "I'll trust you for tonight. I'll lock you in this room and keep the key. Just one word, Mr. Scudder. I believe you're honest, but if you're not, I should warn you that I certainly know how to use a gun."

"Certainly," he answered, jumping up. "I'm afraid I don't know your name, sir, but I would like to thank you. And could I use your bathroom?"

When I saw him next, half an hour later, I didn't recognize him at first. Only the bright eyes were the same. His beard was gone, and his hair was completely different. He walked like a soldier, and he was wearing glasses. And he no longer spoke like an American.

"Mr. Scudder - " I cried.

"Not Mr. Scudder," he answered. "Captain Theophilus Digby of the British Army. Please do remember that."

I made him a bed in my study, and went to bed myself, happier than I had been for the past month. Interesting things did happen sometimes, even in London.

Tour guide Hello, and welcome to the TV and Movie Walking Tour of Central Park in New York City. My name's Stacy Clinton, and I'm going to be your guide today. I hope you are all wearing comfortable shoes because the tour lasts for two hours. We'll end at Columbus Circle at around two o'clock.

We're going to start at Gapstow Bridge – a stone bridge originally built in 1874. From the bridge you have an amazing view of the Plaza Hotel. Does anyone know which movies the Plaza Hotel has been featured in? No? Well, you can see this famous hotel in The Great Gatsby and Almost Famous just to name two. So that's where we're going to go first. Then we're going to go to the Wollman Skating Rink—one of two rinks in the park. This skating rink was opened to the public in 1858, well over 150 years ago! You might recognize the rink from the movies Home Alone 2 and Love Story.

After the rink, we'll walk to one of the most well-known attractions in Central Park—the Carousel. This carousel has 57 colorful wooden horses for children and adults to ride on, and it's only three dollars a ride! The original carousel was built in 1871. This one isn't the original, but it is beautiful. Maybe that's why director Mel Brooks chose to include it in his movie, The Producers.

As we walk toward the middle of the park, we'll pass by the Promenade and Bethesda Fountain where movies such as The Avengers, Breakfast at Tiffany's, and Enchanted shot scenes. Farther north, we'll take a look at the largest lake in Central Park and we'll visit the Boathouse Restaurant, which was featured in the movie When Harry Met Sally. Next, we'll visit the Bow Bridge—a graceful cast-iron bridge, which is considered one of the most romantic spots in New York City. Movie directors must agree because the bridge has been featured in Spider-man 3, on the TV show Glee and in one of the greatest love stories of all time—The Way We Were.

At this point, we'll visit Strawberry Fields, an area of the park dedicated to John Lennon and his music. We'll look at the beautiful memorial mosaic with the word "imagine" in the middle designed to honor Lennon's memory. Of course, this area of the park was also used for a scene in the movie Little Manhattan.

Finally, we'll walk to the Sheep Meadow. Don't worry—there haven't been any sheep in this meadow since 1934. However, we will see people sunbathing or relaxing in this 15-acre open area. This location was used in scenes for Wall Street and The Fisher King.

As we walk to our final destination, Columbus Circle, we'll pass by Tavern on the Green, once a famous restaurant in New York City and also used as a location for the popular movie Ghostbusters. And finally, we'll end up at Columbus Circle where scenes for Taxi Driver and Borat were shot. OK, so let's get going and head to our first stop, Gapstow Bridge...

Host Hello, and welcome to today's program. Have you ever wondered how women made themselves look beautiful in the past? Our beauty expert Olivia Johnson is with us today, and she's going to tell us all about beauty through the ages. Olivia, where are you going to start?

Olivia Well, I'm going to start with the Egyptians, but it wasn't only women who used cosmetics at this time. Both Egyptian men and women loved their cosmetics - we know that from the paintings and the powders they left behind. The women wore a powder on their faces to make their skin lighter, and they painted a big black line around their eyes to make them look bigger. Men put a cream made of fat and oil and other substances on their face to protect it from the sun a very early version of sunscreen. Egyptian kings and queens also put colourful powders around their eyes. Their favorite color was green, which they got from a mineral called malachite.

Host How interesting! Who are you going to tell us about next?

Olivia OK! Let's move on to the ancient Greeks. Cosmetics were an important part of their life, too. The ancient Greek idea of beauty was very pale skin, blonde hair, and natural makeup. For them, pale skin was a sign of beauty and wealth. The women used a powder made out of a metal called lead to make their faces look lighter.

Host You mean lead? The lead that used to be in the pipes carrying the water in our houses?

Olivia That's right.

Host But lead is poisonous!

Olivia Yes, it is, and the ancient Greeks knew lead was poisonous, but it was so important for them to be beautiful that they used it on their face, and of course, it made them sick.

Host I can't believe they used lead on their faces! Anyway, who's next on the list?

Olivia The Romans. They were absolutely obsessed with beauty. A Roman philosopher once wrote, "A woman without paint is like food without salt," so it's clear that they really believed that women should wear a lot of makeup. The Romans believed that pink on the cheeks was a sign of good health, but they did not apply the makeup themselves. Instead, they used their servants to put on their creams and powders.

Host So, the servants were like modern makeup artists, then?

Olivia Yes, I guess you could say that. Host I think I prefer putting on my own makeup. Olivia Johnson, thank you for joining us.

Olivia My pleasure.

7 A))

Host And now for a review of last night's TV shows. The highlight for me was a new series called The Unteachables. It's a kind of reality show that tries to find out if it's really true that there are students who can't be taught. Last night, we were introduced to the students. There are 16 of them altogether, and they're all 14 years old. They've all been suspended from schools at least once, and their teachers think they're impossible to teach.

Watching the students on last night's show, it isn't hard to see why. We see the group during their introductory weekend at the study camp when they meet each other for the first time. At one point, one of the boys warns that he might set the building on fire. You couldn't imagine how their teacher was going to teach them.

And that's where 40-year old Philip Beadle comes in. Beadle used to be a rock musician, but he gave up music at the age of 32 to become a teacher. Since then, he has had a very successful career in education. His greatest achievement was when he worked at a high school where there were a lot of problems. He worked really hard, and his students got the best test scores in English that the school had ever seen – all of his students passed their exams, half of them with the highest score. But let me get back to the show.

In Beadle's first class, he manages to help the students learn to trust him by playing a game with the children. In the game, Beadle and the students point at each other and say an insult. This might not seem very educational, but Beadle had the attention of all the students, and everybody was joining in. And that was the point of the game.

You might think that Beadle's teaching methods are pretty unusual, and you'd be right. At one point on last night's show, he took the students out into the country. They found a field with cows in it, and he made them read poems and plays by Shakespeare to the cows! Remember that these are children who refuse to read in front of other people in a classroom. In another scene, they are in a different field, learning about punctuation. Beadle teaches this by going around to different students and shouting the names of the types of punctuation. So, for example he shouts "question mark," then "huh!" and at the same time moves his body into a shape like a question mark. The students learn by copying him, and it looks like a lot of fun. By the end of the first episode, the students are starting to accept their new teacher. Some of them even say he's "all right." I really enjoyed The Unteachables and I really want to know what happens next. If you're fascinated by the experiment like I am, you'll watch the next episode at the same time next Wednesday. Personally, I can't wait!

Guide: Ladies and gentlemen, can I have your attention, please? Thank you and welcome to Graceland, the home of music star Elvis Presley. We start our tour here, at the front door of this impressive home. This is the perfect place to look closely at the outside of the house. It was built in the early part of the twentieth century, in a style that was popular at the time. The outside walls of the house are made of stone and wood, and the house has two floors as well as a basement. This house was Elvis's home from 1957 until 1977 when he died, which means he spent most of his adulthood here. He got married in 1967 and his wife, Priscilla, came to live with him here after they got married. Their only daughter Lisa Marie was born here. So you see, this house played an extremely important role in Elvis's life. Now, as you're walking through the house, I'd like you to pay special attention to how different rooms are decorated. One room is decorated to look like a jungle with green rugs, plants of all kinds, and animal-print decorations. Another room, the TV room, was one of the first "home theaters" in the US. Elvis placed three TVs side-by-side on a wall. On Sundays, he could watch three different football games at the same time! OK, if you'll come this way, we'll start on the first floor, and the first room we're going to visit is the dining room.

Are you all in? Well, this is the dining room where Elvis enjoyed meals with his guests. The large dining room table could seat about 12 people. The beautiful light hanging over the table is made of Italian glass. Elvis didn't usually wake up until four in the afternoon, so the dinner parties didn't start until ten at night! His full-time cooks made old-fashioned Southern food for the dinner parties - and when he wanted a snack, his cooks made him his favorite peanut butter, banana, and bacon sandwiches...which were probably the reason he gained weight as he got older! The dining room was also used by Elvis as a place to play card games with his friends.

Now, we're going to walk across the hall to the living room, and then we'll head to the music room right behind it. Please follow me.

The centerpiece of the living room is a 14-foot-long white leather couch and 10-foot-long coffee table. Quite impressive! The room has a wall covered in mirrors and is decorated in gold, blue, and white. If you look over here, you'll see a pair of stained-glass birds that lead into the music room. It was in this room that Elvis and his friends spent hours together creating and playing music. When you're ready, we'll continue with our tour of the first floor and visit the kitchen and Elvis's parents' room, where his father had a swimming pool installed in his bedroom along with a jukebox next to it!

Laura Hi, Sam! How was your trip to Chicago?

Sam It was great, thanks. But the flight back was awful! In fact, I made a complaint to the airline.

Laura What was the problem?

Sam Well, as you know, some airlines make you wait forever in line before you can board, which I can't stand. It also means that there's always a huge rush to get on the plane and there isn't any place to put your bags. I find all this so annoying that I usually pay for Preferred Access – you know, when you pay extra to get on the plane first. You just get in line when they call the flight, and then they tell the passengers with Preferred Access to come to the front and you get on the plane first.

Laura So what went wrong? Sam Well, it was fine on the flight to Chicago. I stood in line, they called the people who had Preferred Access, I boarded the plane, and I got to my seat with no problems. Perfect! But on the flight back from Chicago to New York, I was standing in line at the gate waiting to be called to board first, and nothing happened. I don't know if they forgot about Preferred Access or what, but they didn't call us to the front of the line. That meant I had to board the plane with everyone else - in fact, l was one of the last to get on. As you can imagine, I wasn't very happy.

Laura So, what did you do?

Sam When I got home, I emailed the airline explaining what had happened. I told them that I had paid for Preferred Access on both of my flights, but I had only received the service on one of them. I asked them, very politely, to give back the money I had paid for the Preferred Access for the return trip. It was about $20 at the time.

Laura Did you get a response?

Sam Yes, I did. They were very quick. I sent my email at 5 p.m., and I received a reply the next morning.

Laura And did they give you your money back?

Sam Well, no, they didn't. I had a very nice message from a man in customer service saying he was concerned about the incident. But he didn't say he would give me my money back.

Laura Typical! They never do, do they?

Sam Wait a minute – I haven't finished the story yet.

Laura Oh. Sorry...go ahead.

Sam Well, I sent them a second email.

But this time the tone was much stronger and less polite. And it worked! They refunded my PreferredAccess AND they gave me money for my return flight from Chicago. I was impressed!

Laura That's great!

Speaker 1 When I was about 15, I got a part-time job in a supermarket. The job was in the cash office, so I had a lot of responsibility. I had to collect the money from the registers, count it, and put it in the safe for the security people to collect the next morning. I was still in school at the time, so I worked for a couple of hours on a Friday evening and all day on Saturdays. During the holidays I worked more hours because I had more time and there were more customers. The girls in the office were a lot of fun, so the job wasn't at all boring. I worked there for about three years, until I left because I needed more time to study for my final exams at school.

Speaker 2 I studied Spanish in college and at the end of my first year, I went to Argentina to practice my Spanish. I found a job in a restaurant almost as soon as I arrived. The job was washing dishes, which I thought was going to be easy. Unfortunately, I was wrong. There was a machine in the kitchen that washed the plates and glasses and things like that. But my job was to clean the pots and pans that the chef had used. The saucepans were always completely black and it used to take me hours to get everything clean. I didn't enjoy working there very much, and I was really happy when I had learned enough Spanish so that I could stop working there.

Speaker 3 I don't know if you can call this a job, but I did get paid for it, even if it was only twenty dollars! When I was a teenager, I used to take care of my cousins when my aunt and uncle wanted to go out. The kids were a lot younger than me, so I had to babysit for them. I didn't do it every weekend, but it was probably about once a month. My uncle used to pick me up at about seven and take me back to their house. I had to bathe the kids, give them their dinner, and play with them for an hour or so before they went to bed. They were no trouble at all to babysit, and I absolutely loved being with them!

Speaker 4 My dad's a painter, and so the summer after I finished school, I went to help him for a few weeks. At the time, my dad's company had a contract to paint all the exterior doors and windows of some houses in a new development. The weather was great – not too hot and not too cold, so I didn't really mind it. The work was pretty tiring because I spent most of the day climbing up and down a ladder, but I earned a lot of money that summer. But the best thing was spending some time with my dad and his colleagues—we had a really good time!

Speaker 5 One of the first jobs lever had was in a food processing company in San Diego. I was a student at the time, and I needed a temporary job during the holidays. Fortunately, the job was only for two weeks because it was really awful. The worst day was when we were packaging hamburgers. I had to stand on the production line and count the burgers into groups of five. Later, someone farther down the line put the burgers in a box. The problem was that the burgers were frozen and we weren't allowed to wear gloves. This meant that I had to pick up the ice-cold burgers with my hands. I've never had such cold fingers in all my life!

Speaker 1 I know a lot of people who are superstitious when they see somebody standing on top of a ladder on the sidewalk and they don't want to walk underneath it. Actually, I'm one of those people! Walking under a ladder is supposed to give you bad luck, so I never do it. Whenever I come across a ladder, I always walk around it – even if

I have to walk out into the street. Come to think of it, that's probably worse than walking under the ladder because I could get hit by a car, but there's no way that I would ever walk under the ladder.

Speaker 2 I don't know if any other countries have this superstition, but where I live, you have to be very careful when you buy a new pair of shoes. Apparently, it's bad luck to put the shoes on your dining room table. This goes back to something that people did in the past when somebody died – in fact, it was the families of miners in the north of England who originally did this. The family always bought new clothes to dress the dead person in, and this included buying new shoes. So, if you leave your new shoes on the table, some people think this could bring bad luck.

Speaker 3 In some countries, some people are very superstitious about going up or down stairs. If you're going down stairs, it's bad luck to pass someone who's coming up the stairs and the same thing happens the other way around. Someone once told me the reason for this. A long time ago, people carried swords so you had to be very careful of the people around you. If somebody passed you on the stairs you couldn't see them because they were behind you. That meant that they could turn around and kill you with their sword without you realizing.

Speaker 4 When I was planning my wedding a couple of years ago, I had my heart set on a beautiful outdoor spring ceremony in November. Unfortunately, my husband's brother was engaged at the same time, and in Chile it's considered bad luck for two brothers to get married during the same year. Since his brother is the eldest, he got to choose his wedding date first. Of course he chose November. We had to wait until January, in the middle of summer. Our wedding day was one of the hottest days of the year! It was so uncomfortable in my dress and my hair was out of control!

Speaker 5 In Brazil, if someone has an exam or is going for a job interview, we push our thumb between our first two fingers to wish them luck. I have some German friends who make a similar sign. They wrap the fingers of their right hand around their thumb and say, "I'm holding my thumb for you." And I know that in the US people cross their fingers and say "fingers crossed" when they wish people luck, which is also similar. Maybe they're all connected in some way.

Receptionist Good afternoon. Can I help you?

Guest Oh, hello. Yes – I need to ask you about Wi-Fi access in the hotel. I have some work to do while I'm here, so I'm going to need an Internet connection.

Receptionist Well, there's a Wi-Fi hotspot in the lobby of the hotel and all of the rooms have Wi-Fi.

Guest Great. And how much does it cost?

Receptionist It's free in the lobby, but we charge for the Wi-Fi access in the rooms. Are you interested in our standard connection or would you prefer our advanced service?

Guest Um, what's the difference?
Receptionist The standard service is available for a flat fee of ten dollars per day. However, it can be a little bit slow because everyone in the hotel uses it. We have a higher-level service for our guests who need a faster and more reliable connection.

Guest And how much is that?
Receptionist It's 25 cents per minute.
Guest That could get pretty expensive if
I use it all evening.

Receptionist Not really, Sir. The maximum charge is 30 dollars for 24 hours.

Guest I see. So how would that work? Would I have to pay 30 dollars today and another 30 dollars tomorrow?

Receptionist No. The 24-hour period begins from when you checked in.

Guest Great! I'd like the advanced service, then. Oh, and one more question. What do I need to log on to your Wi-Fi?

Receptionist Just a moment. Could you give me your name and room number?

Guest 1t's Gray. Barry Gray. I'm in room 302.

Receptionist Thank you, Mr. Gray.
Here's your Wi-Fi pack, which has the name of the connection...here, and... here's your password. Please try to keep it safe so that nobody else can use it.
You checked in at ten after three today, so the connection will last until the same time tomorrow afternoon.

Guest Great. Is that all I need?

Receptionist Yes, it is.
Guest Thanks a lot for your help.
Receptionist You're welcome.

Host Welcome back to the show. Now, a new exhibition opens today at the Science Museum, and all of the exhibits are everyday objects that we couldn't live without. Charlotte Heath, who has been to the exhibition, is with us today to tell us more about it. Welcome to the show, Charlotte.

Charlotte Thank you.

Host So what kinds of objects can you see in the exhibition? Are we talking about modern gadgets like smartphones and tablets here?

Charlotte No, no, not at all. This exhibition is all about the little or important things we have in our house and use every day. We use them so much that we probably forgot, or don't even realize, that someone actually invented them.

Host Such as?

Charlotte Well, a good example is the container we use to keep food in: the tin can. But I bet you don't know how it was invented.

Host No, I don't.

Charlotte Well, there's a very interesting story behind it. It was the French leader Napoleon Bonaparte who was responsible for this one. In 1809, he was worried about how to feed all his soldiers when they were away from home, so he organized a competition to try to get ideas for how to solve the problem. The first prize was 12,000 Francs and the competition was won by a French chef who had the idea of using glass jars to store food. A year later, a British manufacturer, Peter Durand, improved the design by using thin sheets of metal to make the container that became what we now call a tin can. The only problem was that he used lead in the can, which as you know is poisonous. Several people died after eating food from his tin cans.

Host How unfortunate! Now, Charlotte, do we have time for one more story before the news headlines?

Charlotte Sure. I can tell you about the tea bag. In the past, if you wanted to buy tea, you had to buy the leaves in a big box. To make a drink of tea, you would put the leaves in water, and you would often find small pieces of tea leaves at the bottom of your cup. Anyway, in 1908, an American tea salesperson named Thomas Sullivan had the bright idea of putting the tea in very small bags to give to his customers to try. Sullivan thought that customers would take the tea out of the bags in order to try it, but some of the customers didn't. They found it more convenient to put the bag into hot water, without actually opening it. So, tea bags weren't really invented by a company, it was the tea drinkers who came up with the idea!

Host What an incredible story! And the Everyday Inventions Exhibition at the Science Museum will run until Sunday, July 25th. Right, Charlotte?

Charlotte Yes. The museum is open from ten to six every day, so there's no excuse not to go.

Host Thanks for joining us, Charlotte. And now it's time for the news headlines with...

The next morning when my servant Paddock arrived, I introduced him to Captain Digby. I explained that the Captain was an important man in the army, but he had been working too hard and needed rest and quiet. Then I went out, leaving them both in the flat. When I returned about lunchtime, the doorman told me that the gentleman in flat 15 had killed himself. I went up to the top floor, had a few words with the police, and was able to report to Scudder that his plan had been successful. The police believed that the dead man was Scudder, and that he had killed himself. Scudder was very

For the first two days in my flat, he was very calm, and spent all his time reading and smoking, and writing in a little black notebook. But after that he became more restless and nervous. It was not his own danger that he worried about, but the success of his plan to prevent the murder of Karolides. One night he was very serious.

"Listen, Hannay," he said. "I think I must tell you some more about this business. I would hate to get killed without leaving someone else to carry on with my plan."

I didn't listen very carefully. I was interested in Scudder's adventures, but I wasn't very interested in politics. I remember that he said Karolides was only in danger in London. He also mentioned a woman called Julia Czechenyi.

The next evening I had to go out. I was meeting a man I had known in Africa for dinner. When I returned to the flat, I was surprised to see that the study light was out. I wondered if Scudder had gone to bed early. I turned on the light, but there was nobody there. Then I saw something in the corner that made my blood turn cold.

Scudder was lying on his back. There was a long knife through his heart, pinning him to the floor.
